Democrats Hit Campaign Trail

Speaking Tours Cover Wide Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Democratic senators popularly believed to be in pursuit of their party's presidential nomination are going to be out on the campaign trail from one end of the country to the other this fall.

The three, Sens. John F. Kennedy (Mass), Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn), and Stuart Symington (Mo), were off on speaking trips almost the minute Congress adjourned last Tuesday.

Of the trio, only Humphrey is openly a candidate, and his announcement was made for him by friends. But the schedules they will be following in the next three months leave little doubt of what they have in mind.

The two other Democratic senators who are possible contenders for the 1960 White House race, Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex) and Estes Kefauver (Tenn), are confining their touring this fall to their home states. Both are up for reelection next year.

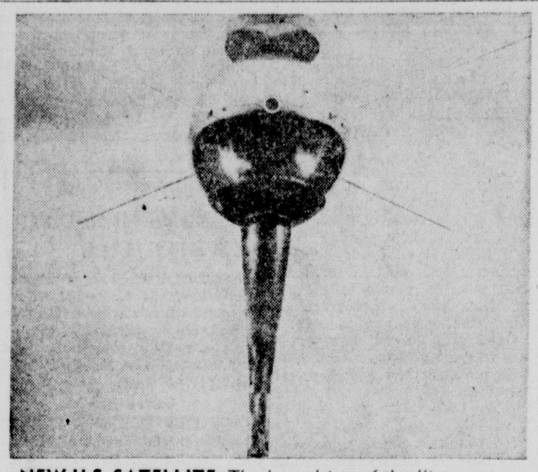

Humphrey's Senate term also expires next year, and he will devote part of his time to Minnesota in the next few weeks, breaking off now and then for sprints to other states.

Both Humphrey and Kennedy will spend several days each in Wisconsin and Oregon, two of the states where they are most likely to clash in the 1960 presidential primaries.

Aides of Kennedy, Humphrey, and Symington report that each senator has had to turn down more engagements than he could accept. Congress ran so late this year that some dates for early September had to be canceled.

Kennedy's office said requests for appearances have been coming into his office at the rate of 6,000 to 8,000 a year, which figures out to around 20 a day.

"We have some people spending all their time just writing regret letters," an aide said. "We can accept less than 1 per cent."

NEW U.S. SATELLITE: The launching of the "ice cream cone" satellite at Cape Canaveral yesterday regained some of the U.S. prestige lost last Sunday when the Russians hit the moon with "Lunik Second". The 50-pound satellite is designed to detect pockets of high radiation which space travellers would try to avoid. It circles the earth every 130 minutes, has batteries for 3 or 4 months instrument operation and is expected to stay aloft for 30 to 40 years. (NEA Telephoto)

Clark Bridge Closes Sept. 28 For Repairs

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Closing of the Clark bridge over the Mississippi River at Alton for repairs has been set tentatively for Sept. 28.

The bridge is expected to be out of service for about 60 days and much of the traffic will be re-routed over the Chain of Rocks bridge about 15 miles to the south. Tentative plans for a ferry service across the river at Alton during the period have been announced.

The Fruin-Colnon Construction Co. of St. Louis, which will make the repair for the Missouri Highway Department, has been given permission to limit use of the bridge to one-way traffic next week while making tests.

Soviet Press, Radio Stress Friendship For U.S. Theme

MOSCOW (AP) — America is getting the full friendship treatment in Soviet newspapers and on radio and television. Nothing like it has been seen here in recent years.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States has really thawed the air in Moscow.

The Soviet press has blown hot before only to blow cold again later. But a sample of how warm it can get came in a brief Tass dispatch reporting the arrival of a U. S. military delegation in the Iranian capital of Tehran.

In the past this might be an occasion for reviving charges of aggression by the United States on the Soviet Union's southern borders. But this dispatch contained not one critical adjective.

Moscow radio is carrying programs of American music and translations from American literature several times a day.

The children's morning hour today began with a Soviet singing a translation of Stephen Foster's 'Way Down upon the Swanee River. Other American and Soviet songs followed. A story called "My American Friend Sandy" by a soviet children's writer also was read.

Friday there was a radio recitation of Longfellow's Hiawatha, selections followed from O. Henry and Mark Twain. TV viewers saw Walt Disney cartoons, accompanied by an explanation of his animation techniques.

Moscow and Leningrad radio stations also carried recorded concerts by American artists including pianist Van Cliburn, a favorite here since he won fame in a Soviet piano competition.

FRENCH COMEDIENNE GENEVIEVE BREAKS LEG

TORONTO (AP)—French comedienne Genevieve, dressed in a tight fitting gown that hampered her movements, stumbled on a stage rope Friday night and broke her right leg.

Queensway General Hospital officials said the star of the Cole Porter musical "Can Can" may be hospitalized up to eight months and probably will not be able to walk for a year. They said she was resting comfortably.

FREAK TORNADO STRIKES AUSTRALIAN TOWN

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A freak tornado damaged about 400 homes 82 miles north of Sydney Sunday. It cut a half-mile swath for six miles through a forest before blowing out to sea. The wind, accompanied by hail, was estimated at 100 miles an hour. No one was seriously hurt.

Ike Raps Congress On Spending Issue

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday ripped into the Democratic-controlled Congress on the spending issue and other matters. He credited the Republicans and the American public with holding the Democrats in check in "an historic turnabout."

In a statement on the record of the recently adjourned first session of the 86th Congress, Eisenhower brushed aside what he called claims that the administration's budget for the year which started July 1 was cut by Congress.

"The Congress distorted the shape of the budget in many respects—cutting where they should not have cut and adding, particularly in long-term items, vast sums that not only add to our financing difficulties but will also some day have to be paid by our grandchildren.

Increased Spending

"Should we again see extravagant proposals sponsored in the Congress, I shall continue to oppose them," Eisenhower said.

"I am confident of the continuing, energetic support of the American people if such a struggle should develop. I believe that the American people can convert their gains for a responsible government in this first session into a complete victory in the second."

The President thus made it clear that he is ready to go to the mat with the Democratic majority at the very start of 1960, a presidential and congressional election year.

Retort From Cannon

Eisenhower's blast promptly drew a retort from Chairman Clarence Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee—one of the Democrats most directly concerned with spending legislation.

Cannon said Eisenhower's remarks did not change what he termed the fact that Congress voted appropriations which totaled more than a billion dollars under Eisenhower's recommendation.

"If he objected to the appropriations, he should not have requested them," Cannon told a reporter in Washington.

Mansfield Answers

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) said Eisenhower "ought to take a second look at his facts."

Mansfield, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said Congress reduced "the President's all-time high spending request by at least $1,800,000,000."

Something New-- Plaid Paint Job On Family's Home

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — The most unusual house in the Wildwood subdivision west of Waukegan is the one occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Demith and their 1-year-old daughter.

It's painted plaid and in 10 color shades. It's also a dead ringer for the little girl's skirt.

Demith, 36 - year - old maintenance man at Abbott Laboratories, decided he was tired of the old brown and tan colors he used twice to paint the house before.

So he asked his wife for advice.

"Paint it plaid," she suggested.

Demith, using their daughter's skirt for a pattern guide, bought three shades of yellow paint, three of pink, two of grey, one white and one orange.

Then he painted the house in a checkers and cross-bar pattern.

It took several weeks to put the plaid coat on the five-room, one story house. Demith did the whole job with a one-inch-wide paint brush.

Said Demith:

"I'll bet that more than 3,000 people have come to see the house since we finished it a week ago. But I haven't talked to many of them. They seem to be afraid to come near and just stand on the corner and stare."

Rainier Makes His Wife Regent In Case He Dies

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Prince Rainier III has made his wife, Princess Grace, the official regent of Monaco in case he dies.

The Prince promulgated an order in the official Palace Journal Sept. 17 setting forth the procedure to be followed should he die before the heir apparent, 18-month-old Prince Albert, is 21.

The order names Princess Grace regent with full powers until Albert comes of age. However, should she remarry, she would surrender legal custody of Prince Albert and Princess Caroline, and the regency would pass to a fourman state council.

The order superseded one published in 1948 and officially removes Prince Rainier's sister, Princess Antoinette, and her three children from the line of succession to the throne of this small principality.

Pilot Safely Lands Crippled Liner In Ireland

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — A four-engine airliner with a propellor torn off and embedded in the fuselage limped 400 miles over the Atlantic Saturday to a safe landing at Shannon Airport.

The plane, an Air France Super Constellation with 21 people aboard, landed as emergency crews stood by at full alert.

The pilot, Capt. Andre Compere, with 16,000 hours of flying, said the propellor on his No. 3 engine (inside right) started running at an abnormal speed. Then it ripped away from the engine and planted itself in the fuselage.

The huge liner rapidly lost altitude and soon was skimming the waves. Sea spray at times whipped into the passenger cabin through broken windows.

Rescue boats sped out from the Irish and English coasts. Six other aircraft took up positions near the stricken airliner to escort it to Shannon.

Compere said he had stopped engine No. 4 (outside right) for fear the wildly spinning propellor would break away and damage it.

"Our altitude had fallen," he said later. "I decided to start motor No. 4, fortunately still intact. It started quickly. We regained altitude and after three hours of flight we landed safely at Shannon."

Negotiators Seek To Avert Strike At Wilson Plants

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal mediator called a conference of union and management negotiators Saturday night in an effort to head off a threatened strike of 5,700 Wilson & Co. meat workers in seven cities.

The United Packinghouse Workers of America has called a strike starting at midnight against Wilson plants in Albert Lea, Minn; Omaha; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Kansas City, Kan.; Chicago, Los Angeles and Memphis, Tenn.

The UPWA contracts expired Aug. 31 but were extended until midnight, Sept. 19, pending settlement efforts.

The union said it is seeking a contract similar to one negotiated recently with Amour & Co. That agreement calls for pay raises and benefits totaling about 22 cents an hour. Pay averaged $2.56 cents hourly under the old Wilson & Co. contract.

The parley was called by Commissioner Douglas D. Brown (9 p.m. CDT).

Meanwhile, representatives of Swift & Co. met with union representatives in an effort to settle a strike of 17,700 workers in 34 plants. The walkout of members of the UPWA and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers occurred Sept. 4.

No progress was reported.

Khrushchev Complains About Security Network

Union Leaders' Row Threatens Dinner For Mr. K

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An argument over ground rules for a dinner here Sunday night for American union leaders and visiting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened Saturday to disrupt the affair.

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers and host for the private dinner, said he and a half dozen fellow labor chiefs are geared for a rough-and-tumble quizzing of the rotund Red leader.

However Joseph A. Beirne, head of the Communications Workers and one of two prospective guests who decided against attending, said he had pulled out because he had been informed by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov that Khrushchev was preparing a sort of filibuster speech.

Beirne said there wasn't much point in simply listening through a Soviet propaganda speech.

Carey and Walter Reuther, head of the Auto Workers Union, said that, to the contrary, they had a complete understanding with Menshikov that no holds were to be barred, and the way is clear for a full give-and-take quiz session on world problems.

They pointed out that such open ground rules prevailed when the union leaders had a private huddle last January in Washington with Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

Carey said he already had sent word to Khrushchev to be prepared to answer questions about disarmament. Khrushchev took quite a bit of steam out of that question by his proposal to the United Nations General Assembly that all nations disarm completely in four years.

Aides of both Reuther and Carey said they aren't going to let Khrushchev duck the free and frank discussion they have in mind.

"It is important for representatives of American labor," Reuther said, "to tell Khrushchev to his face how much we condemn the Soviet system and how much we are devoted to our own system based on freedom."

This desire—that the dinner meeting be one of American labor speaking directly to the top Soviet boss—is the reason why the union chiefs flatly turned down a request by the State Department that Henry Cabot Lodge be invited.

Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, is Khrushchev's official escort on the Soviet Premier's tour.

The dinner could be a lively affair, perhaps the roughest session Khrushchev will have in this country. The union chiefs are strong on the direct, blunt expression, and weak on diplomatic nicety.

Complicating the situation is the fact that host AFL-CIO leaders have decided officially to have nothing to do with Khrushchev, whom they charge with being a ruthless dictator.

Name Group To Study Problems Of Older People

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An Illinois council on the improvement of the economic and social status of older people was named Saturday by Gov. William G. Stratton.

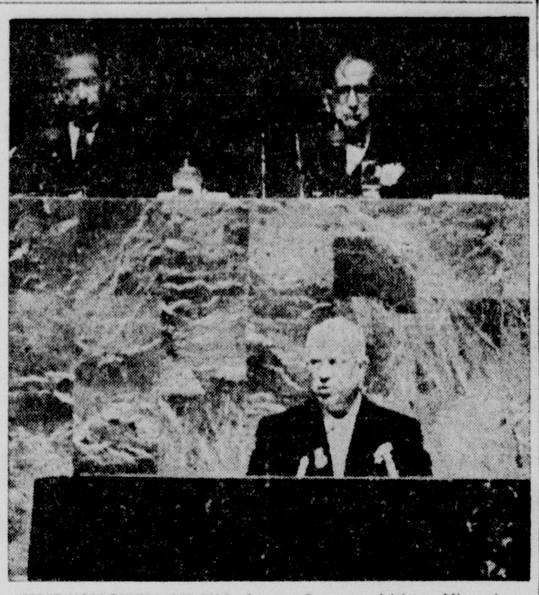

He designated William Rutherford of Peoria as chairman.

The council will advise on the development and conduct of regional and state meetings preparing for the White House conference on aging in October 1961.

Five regional conferences will be held downstate. One will be held in Chicago and one statewide.

Other members are Charles Craigmile, Sol Brandzel, Raymond M. Hilliard, I. S. Loewenberg, and Robert R. McRae, all of Chicago; Mrs. Florence L. Baltz, Washington; Sen. Paul W. Broyles (R-Mt. Vernon); Dr. Edward W. Cannaday, East St. Louis and Rep. Samuel H. Shapiro (D-Kankakee).

Their studies will involve advanced ages of 65 years or more; programs for prevention of dependency in old age; and provision of services and education in the needs of older people.

Herter Thinks Mr. K Genuinely Desires Reduction In Arms

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter believes Nikita Khrushchev genuinely desires arms reduction and the United States must probe fully the Soviet Premier's new four-year disarmament plan.

This was stated Saturday by an international statesman who cannot be identified by name or nationality but who is familiar with Herter's thinking.

Herter's belief, this informant said, is that Khrushchev wants to go down in history as the man who boosted Soviet consumer goods production, fulfilled his seven-year economic plan, raised his country's living standard and made the Soviet Union first in the world in industry.

For this reason, it was said, Herter believes Khrushchev has a genuine desire to switch Soviet manpower and capital from military to civilian purposes, which cannot be done without some disarmament agreement.

In giving the U.N. General Assembly his disarmament scheme Friday, Khrushchev said the Soviet people's material needs "would be better satisfied if the arms burden were removed." He added, "we need peace . . . in order to provide our people with an abundance of food, clothes, homes, etc."

Khrushchev proposed that the whole world disarm in four years, keeping only police units with small arms for maintenance of internal order. He said that if the West could not agree to this, the Soviet Union was ready for such things as an atom-free zone in Europe, abolition of foreign bases and an East-West nonaggression pact—all Soviet policy aims for some time.

In a statement later, Herter himself said Khrushchev's plan seems to repeat earlier Soviet proposals but will get "very careful examination." He stressed the need for control in disarmament.

Discussing this Saturday, the statesman said Herter was a bit skeptical and somewhat amused at Khrushchev's idea that full inspection should take effect only after full disarmament, when nothing is left to inspect.

U.S. Hopes For Softening Of Soviet Policy Begin To Fade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev seems to be delighted with the results of his first few days in the United States. But U.S. officials who have hoped for some softening of Soviet policy are disappointed.

The Soviet Premier will hold three days of policy talks with President Eisenhower this week just before he flies home. Unless he produces some newer approach to world problems than he has come up with so far, the conference at Camp David, Md., promises to be a barren affair.

Probably the reason for Khrushchev's evident pleasure in his visits to Washington and New York is that he is having a propaganda success.

In his appearance at the National Press Club Wednesday, the one-time coal miner proved himself a voluble salesman of Communist ideological wares and an artful dodger of questions he disliked or preferred not to meet head on.

Before the United Nations General Assembly in New York Friday, while representatives of more than 80 other nations sat mostly in eager silence, he outlined his plan for saving the world from war.

He did it so skillfully and with implications of such tremendous hope behind it that U.S. officials were stopped from saying what they really thought—that Khrushchev had hoaxed the U.N., that his plan is not a plan at all but a gilded propaganda statement of a noble, Utopian, now unattainable goal.

So Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, after consulting with his advisers in Washington and New York, issued a statement at the U.N. saying the Khrushchev proposal would have to be carefully studied. Herter said that should be done by a 10-nation disarmament conference which will meet at Geneva early next year.

What Khrushchev discribed as a plan—complete disarmament in four years backed up by a control system about which he was vague—was in fact one statement of the aim of 10-year-old disarmament negotiations. These negotiations have made one thing clear above all others. The core of an arms reduction and control agreement between the Soviet Union and the Western powers is the kind of system which would enforce it.

Behind this central issue, in turn, lies the mistrust that the Soviet Union and the Western bloc have in each other's pledged word. But the Russians have a tremendous advantage here. Under the Western system, with public inquiry and debate and with a free press, the Soviet Union can have reasonable confidence in its knowledge of the readiness for war of Western armaments.

In the Soviet Union the reverse is true. Rigid controls over press and over legislative discussion and over travel by foreigners give the U.S.S.R. conditions of secrecy unknown in the West.

Bewilders, Stuns Elite Of Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev convulsed, badgered, stunned and generally bewildered the elite of Hollywood Saturday.

In an astonishing performance, the boss of world communism:

Complained bitterly about the right network of security which had been thrown about him. This, he seemed to think, somehow reflected upon his dignity as "a free man."

Boasts

Admitted the Soviet Union has a long way to go to catch up with the American way of life, but boasted the Soviet system would leave capitalism behind in the dust.

Called members of his party to their feet at the luncheon to stand as exhibits of the vaunted worth of the Soviet system.

Beamed and joked, scowled and complained, and in general played the consummate actor in his attempts to put over his points.

Tight Security

The Soviet premier blasted into the West aboard a huge American military jet and was ushered into town behind a tight screen of security.

In the closed limousine which brought him to the 20th Century-Fox studio for the luncheon he had little opportunity to wave the broad-brimmed gray felt hat which made him look like a Russian version of a rugged, elderly cowhand.

Khrushchev didn't like this closed-in feeling, and later complained about it in his speech.

Grim, Scowling

The guests at the luncheon—including the elite of the Hollywood movie colony, seemed to think he was joking at first. His words had a joking sound. But he turned suddenly grim and scowling. He had been denied the pleasure of visiting Disneyland, the huge nearby amusement park of world fame.

Were there rocket launching pads there—Were the gangsters in control—Was it the cholera—? Khrushchev wanted to know.

Acid Remark

It was more than mock indignation now. And Khrushchev added acidly:

"I personally will accompany anyone anywhere in my country and there will be no suggestion of his being subjected to anything but respect," the Communist leader snorted.

He complained about the ride into town "in the sweltering heat of a closed car." Was this the way to treat "a free man?" asked the visitor from one of the tightest totalitarian regimes in history.

Lodge Explains

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who is Khrushchev's official escort, explained through a spokesman that Khrushchev had asked so late for the Disneyland visit there had not been time to take adequate security steps.

The Soviet leader's hosts at the luncheon laughed and applauded frequently at the hi-jinks of the 5-by-5 statesman from Moscow who has just proposed total world disarmament as a cure for international tension.

Audience Turns Cold

But by the time the luncheon was ended, the audience appeared to have turned cold to him, and even hostile, as if feeling his complaints and gibes had

Farmer Bob Garst Has Some Mighty Interesting Things To Show Nikita

COON RAPIDS, Iowa (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and farmer Bob Garst—who will renew their friendship on the Garst family farm here Wednesday—are both revolutionaries of a sort.

Khrushchev is well acquainted with revolution as the most powerful Communist in the world.

Garst has had a part in developing more than one of the radical new techniques which have peacefully revolutionized the American farm.

The stocky, outspoken Iowan good-naturedly promises he will give Khrushchev a thorough demonstration of how Americans overthrew agricultural tradition and multiplied nature's blessings — a type of revolution he willingly would share with the Soviet Union.

"That's why he's coming over here—to learn about corn and cattle. I'm a modest man but I can give him all the answers," says Garst.

"They know me in Russia as a man who doesn't hand out a lot of gobbledegook on technical agriculture. I can demonstrate the latest farm techniques right here."

What are the ideas and techniques that attract the Premier of the Soviet Union to a 160-acre farm a mile south of this central Iowa town of 1,776 people?

"Well," says Garst, "Khrushchev is interested in corn. And he wants his people to eat less bread, potatoes and borscht and more beef, eggs and sausage."

Garst says he can show Mr. K. how to grind up a corn cob, add a little molasses and a high protein ingredient called urea and change this one-time waste product of the farm into a cattle feed.

He has been feeding his stock corn cobs for almost two decades. His development of the lowly corn cob is one example of his agricultural ingenuity.

Garst says he also can show Khrushchev how to keep farm land in good shape by heavy fertilization, not rotation.

"I haven't believed in the rotation theory for 15 years. I believe in cultivating that part of the farm best suited for cultivation and leaving the remainder in pasture. Fertilizer is the answer."

Garst says he can show the Soviet Premier how to take cheap, low grade cottonwood and build inexpensive farm structures. He has one—a huge grain storage building—on his place.

Ruddy-faced from years of living outdoors, 61-year-old Roswell Garst—Bob is a nickname — resides on the farm with his wife Elizabeth, 58. They live in a six-bedroom, air-conditioned, white frame home.

The youngest of four sons of a Civil War veteran, Garst prides himself on being "The boy of a country merchant who owned some farm land."

He will talk farming to anyone, anywhere, but parries most questions concerning his personal affairs.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

How Meredosia Got Its Name—Take Your Pick!

BY CECIL TENDICK

"How Meredosia Got Its Name" was the subject of an interesting item carried in Thursday's issue of the Meredosia Budget. It was a reprint of a section of an earlier history of the Illinois river valley as told by R. N. McFarland, a pioneer, to B. F. Bond, one-time publisher of a weekly newspaper in Versailles.

This writer has two other versions of how the merry town of Meredosia got its merry name, but he much prefers the McFarland version.

"I don't know how true it is, but they used to tell how Meredosia got its name. There was a French trader lived there, so the story goes, by the name of Dosia and he had a daughter by the name of 'Mere'; I suppose that's French for Mary, I don't know as to that. Well, anyway Mere was a pretty girl and all the young fellows were in love with her, in fact, everybody liked her and when they commenced to try to decide on a name, Mere's many admirers all asked that the new town be christened Mere Dosia, but they compromised by making it one word, Meredosia, in place of dividing it. I am sure that's how Meredosia got its name."

The story is almost too romantic and refreshing to be true, so it probably isn't.

The late Dr. J. F. Snyder of Virginia said early French visitors gave the name to the Indian settlement there. At the time the sloughs on both sides of the river filled with reeds. So were the edges of Meredosia Bay. In Old French, "osia" meant any material suitable for basket weaving and 'mere' meant lake. The Indians used the reeds to make fine baskets; the lake was full of reeds; hence, "mere d 'osia" (lake of reeds) was a natural name.

Dr. Snyder can be counted as an authority. He was certainly one of the most erudite men who ever hit this part of the globe. He held degrees in both law and medicine, spoke and wrote English, French, German and Spanish, was a highly skilled anthropologist, a founder and long-time director of the Illinois State Historical society and a correspondent of Smithsonian Institute and of the national museums of London, Paris and Berlin.

McFarland's version is first bolstered, and then utterly kicked to pieces, by one a little older than his.

In 1819, nearly two centuries after the date Snyder says the French named the place, Gen. Murray McConnel made a trip up the Illinois river valley to the present site of Peoria. Gen. McConnel later settled in Jacksonville and was the town's No. 1 lawyer for years.

He said that in 1819 he found only one white man in the territory now embraced by Morgan, Cass and Scott counties and none north of there. He was a Frenchman living with the Indians on the east side of the Illinois river. Gen. McConnel recalled his name as Antoine d'Osia, hence lake of d'Osia, and Meredosia.

The general wasn't positive about the name, but he remembered the man well, for he was a Catholic priest busy converting the Indians.

So there goes McFarland's story. Too bad, isn't it?

THREE DECADES OF AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL GROWTH

AND MORE ARE COMING—For the 15th straight year, the nation's school and college enrollment is setting records. An all-time high of 46,480,000 students—one out of every four Americans—will attend halls of learning in the 1959-60 school year (see Newschart above). This is an increase of nearly two million over 1958-59. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates 1,368,000 teachers will be available, 195,000 less than needed. Last year the deficiency was 182,000.

Find Report Taxpayers Are Turning Down School Bond Issues Is Exaggerated

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

Those reports you probably have heard about irate taxpayers turning down school bond issues right and left appear to be somewhat exaggerated.

Best figures available show that four out of five such issues are being approved. This is ahead of last year's record and about on a par with 1957.

These figures are incomplete, and they don't tell the whole story. Even so, they seem to demonstrate pretty well that the U.S. taxpayer isn't yet in open revolt when it comes to putting up the money for more schools.

But there are holes in this line of argument.

First, there is no one place in these United States where all the facts and figures on school bond elections are tabulated. The Investment Bankers Assn. of America has the best records available, but association officials acknowledge they don't hear about every election.

Secondly, there is the great intangible—how many bond issues are being postponed a few years for fear of certain defeat? No one can even guess.

On the basis of what's available, however, here is the record:

In the first five months of this year the voters approved 550 school bond issues worth $554,698,000 and rejected 137 worth $123,908,000. They approved 80 per cent of the number offered, and 82 per cent of the dollar value involved.

In the first five months of 1958, the country was still wrestling with the recession. Even so, the voters approved 665 school bond issues for $444,117,000 and turned down 218 for $176,859,000. That's 75 per cent approval by number, 71 per cent by dollar value.

In the comparable period of 1957 there were 713 issues approved for $516,436,000 and 157 rejected for $152,353,000 — 82 per cent approval by number, 77 per cent by dollar value.

There's a big dropoff in the number of school bond elections after April, but another half-billion dollars worth is up for decision later this year. Those who profess to know say the rate of approvals will probably continue.

But there are some dark spots.

It's particularly rough in the sprawling suburban areas such as those around New York City. These residential areas have little if any industry to share in the tax load, and a boom in school-age population is putting heavy pressure on the schools.

Every new school bond issue means an automatic increase in the property tax. Before long, the poor taxpayer has had all he can stand. But his "no" vote on the school bond issue isn't so much a rejection of education for the children as it is a cry for help.

School people all over the country have long been saying that the local property tax will no longer bring in the money needed for schools.

In Massachusetts, school officials are urging state lawmakers to pass a 3 per cent sales tax and to set aside a large portion of the revenue for schools.

They're doing the same thing in South Dakota, and they hope to do it in, Iowa, Idaho, and Nebraska. In Tennessee there is a drive for a new tax structure to finance public education.

About a third of the local school districts in California are at or near their legal debt limit and are asking the state for help. New Jersey educators are asking for more state aid, and so are those in Florida and Pennsylvania.

Dr. James E. Allen Jr., New York state commissioner of education, summed it up recently when he said the suburban tax base can't meet the growing demands on it. Unless new sources of revenue are found, he said, property taxes will have to go up 40 per cent in the next six years.

Three Church Societies Meet At Arenzville

ARENZVILLE — The WSCS of the Methodist church held its first meeting of the new year at the church Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Ralph Clark was in charge, and the meeting opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer.

Fellowship of Intercession was presented by Mrs. Walter Peck. The worship service "New Year and New Responsibilities" was given by Mrs. Adam Beets. The program with the same title was presented by Mrs. Charles Ater. Mrs. Floyd Mason read the article "There's A Light Upon The Mountains," followed by the members reading the hymn "Watchman Tell Us of the Night", accompanied with music by Mrs. Adam Beets.

It was decided to hold the annual baked chicken supper and bazaar on October 14th. The meeting closed by repeating Mizpah.

A social hour was held with Mrs. Floyd Crawford and Mrs. Bertha Stock as hostesses. The next meeting will be held October 8 at 1:30 p.m. at the church.

Plans were made for the serving of the L.L.L. banquet and the L.W.M.L. banquet, the meetings of both organizations to be held at Trinity Lutheran church in October. Painting the church basement is a project of the Fellowship League, and the members are working at the basement each evening this week.

Group contests were enjoyed during the social hour. The committee for the evening was Mr. and Mrs. Milton Carls, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schone, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Witte.

Entertains Altar Society

The September meeting of the Altar Society of St. Fidelis Catholic church was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Albert Kolberer. Mrs. Katie Lutkehus presided at the meeting, which opened with prayer. Announcement was made of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women Convention to be held in Alton Sept. 19-20.

A new sign has been placed at the church recently. The annual church cleaning will be done on Wednesday, Sept. 30. It was decided to cook Burgoo soup for kettle service only on October 28, and a market will also be held on that date. The meeting closed with prayer. During the social hour a contest was won by Mrs. William Jones.

Fourteen members were present, and guests were Miss Mary Louise Lutkehus and Miss Helen Kolberer.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

Somebody always seems to be making up a list about something. A while back the Hypnotists Institute of America chose "The most exciting eyes of this generation." Among the eyes that had it were Mrs. Earl Warren, John L. Lewis, Joan Caulfield and Joe Louis. That's high grade peek-a-boo, but it might get a dissenting opinion from a young Romeo parked in a convertible under a full moon. It's difficult to pick the most stirring optics anyway. If you drive through a red light, the cop who stops you might easily enter the lists. Some folks might even mention a banker's or landlord's professional scrutiny. A fellow trying to alibi a 3 A.M. homecoming might have another entry. To the egotist, of course, the most exciting is the single "I".

A London, England, minister has been giving his women parishioners lessons in judo. Well, that's a new twist in religious education. There isn't anything new about the used car bargains available at the E. W. Brown Agency. Our regular customers have known about it for a long time. Our good quality trade-ins are put in top, clean condition and priced below their true values. And each car carries a dependable guarantee. Come in and test drive the used car of your choice. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

ON REACHING SEVENTY-FIVE

Another birthday, and another step
Up our Golden Stairway, each one
Lifting us a little higher.
This year we cross over to our
DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY
Step by step - -
Passing from elderly to old,
From Autumn ripe to Winter glory.
So many gone, so many yet to come,
So many programs we have given,
So many books we have reviewed,
So many cherished friends we have made.

An yet we haven't gone so far,
But what our eyes can see a star ahead,
As we reflect on the faithful adherence
Through the years, to the founding ideals . . .
Of home, family, and friends.
Count us in on all new books.
And among good cooks, we are the best - -
So they say - - -
Yes, its great fun to be alive
And hold membership in Household Science Club Seventy-Five!

Harasoy Beans Make 44 Bu. In Jersey Co.

JERSEYVILLE — Among the best yielding varieties of soy beans raised in Jersey county this year is the Harasoy. A 45 acre field of the mentioned variety at the Edward Greenwalt farm two miles southwest of Jerseyville averaged 44 bushels.

Greenwalt and his son-in-law, Fred McFain, are in partnership in operation of the farm, and the latter during a trip to the Jerseyville business district Friday morning reported that harvesting of the acreage of Harasoys was completed the past week.

The Harasoy is among the early maturing varieties of soy beans, and most of the early and medium early varieties have been harvested in this locality except where excessive weed infestation has caused serious delays.

McFain reported that the Harasoy crop at the Greenwalt farm was planted in late May. Weed seed on the acreage intended for beans was given the chance to sprout and then disced before the crop was planted. The 45 acre field was exceptionally free of weed infestation at harvest time, and the beans brought the market top when delivered here to the Beach Grain Company.

Farmers in this area report that late soy beans remain green and are badly infested with weed growth as a result of the late summer rains in August which germinated weed seeds and caused them to grow at a time when soy bean growth had reached a stage when the crop could no longer be cultivated, to control the sudden weed growth.

Roger Sears Hospitalized By Train-Truck Collision

Roger Owen Sears, resident of 1422 East Railroad Street, was admitted as a patient at Our Saviour's Hospital late Friday afternoon suffering from injuries received when his car and a Wabash train collided at the Illinois Avenue-Wabash Railroad crossing. He was rushed to the hospital by Cooney ambulance shortly after 4:15 p.m.

Examination at the hospital revealed a laceration on the head and a fractured shoulder. Sears remained a patient at the hospital overnight, and was dismissed Saturday.

According to police reports Sears was injured when the half-ton pick up truck which he was driving attempted to cross the tracks on Illinois Avenue. Sears was heading north on Illinois at the time of the accident.

The Sears truck was struck in the right front fender by the coupling of the westbound train and the impact threw the truck clear of the tracks. The engineer immediately applied his brakes and came to rest a short way down the tracks.

Sears told officials he heard the train whistle but thought it was a train that was switching on the north-south tracks of the G.M. & O. railroad. L. H. Griffin of Decatur, Ill., engineer of the train, said he applied his brakes as soon as he heard the noise of the collision.

The Sears truck was damaged in the right side and cab and several chairs and a table in the truck were damaged. It was towed to Arthalony's garage by the Arthalony wrecker. City police officers assisted at the scene of the accident.

The young couple plans a wedding Sunday, November 8, in Jacksonville.

Burglars Fail To Get Receipts Of Grid Game

BEARDSTOWN, Ill.— Burglars who tried to obtain the receipts of Friday night's football game between Beardstown and Lewistown found themselves blanked at the end of some hard work. The money wasn't where they thought it was.

A west window of the old section of the high school was broken to gain entrance. The burglars then smashed the glass of a door to the principal's office, and once inside jimmied the lock of a fireproof record case, which contained no money.

Receipts of the football game had been placed in a bank night depository.

Damage to the school building was confined to the glass doors and record case.

Lewistown defeated Beardstown 13-0 in a contest which dedicated the new athletic field.

Dinner Will Honor Retired Postmaster At Carrollton

CARROLLTON—Mrs. Meda D. Dowdall, Postmaster in the Carrollton postoffice since Nov. 1, 1941, is retiring at the close of business September 30 and she will share honors with George C. Green, rural mail carrier who retired in 1957, at a dinner party to be given by the Carrollton Postal employees at the Colonial Room at Day's Cafe Wednesday evening, September 23.

Lawrence J. Powell, who also retired from the rural service in 1957 was to have been another honoree but he passed away in Passavant Hospital in Jacksonville, September 15, and a gift which would have been given to him has been given to his widow, Mrs. Powell.

Mrs. Dowdall is being succeeded as Postmaster by George Graham who will serve as acting Postmaster until such time as a permanent Postmaster is selected. Graham, who is a farmer in Linder township, is Greene county chairman of the Republican Central Committee and is also a member of the Greene County Board of Supervisors. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will also attend the dinner Wednesday evening.

Others who have been invited to the dinner are neighboring Postmasters and their wives, Congresswoman Mrs. Sid Simpson, Harris, the Field Service Officer and Crossman, inspector for this area both of the state postal system.

Mrs. Dowdall who is retiring after having held the office since 1941, has had experience in legal work in the office of the late Norman L. Jones and as Deputy Circuit clerk in Greene County. She was also employed for a time in the Greene County National Bank before receiving her appointment as Postmaster.

Mrs. Dowdall states that she has been fortunate in having good postal employees during her term of office even during the war years when it was necessary to replace several by wives of the employees who were in military service. Mrs. Dowdall also expressed appreciation of the splendid cooperation of partrons of the office and of the road commissioners in the various townships served by rural routes.

As is true in practically all Post Offices there has been a great increase in mail and in the receipts of the office during Mrs. Dowdall's term of office and many improvements have been made in the service and methods of the Post Office Department.

Cass County Supervisors Discuss Proposed Sales Tax

VIRGINIA—The Cass County Board of Supervisors met in regular session several days last week in the courthouse in Virginia to take action on a proposal to impose a county sales tax of ½ of 1 percent on sales in business in rural areas of Cass which are in unincorporated areas and are not part of a city, village or other municipality.

Action was deferred until the adjourned meeting of the Board scheduled for Friday, September 25. If Cass adopts such a tax, it would be effective the first of the month following adoption of an ordinance.

The appropriation committee will meet at 9:30, September 18, to prepare a county budget, for the year 1959 to September 1960. Claims against the county for this quarter were approved at the opening of the session.

Election judges were appointed for a two year period, their terms to expire September 1961. They will serve in the national, state, county and township elections next year, at the primary in April, 1960, and the national election in November, 1960. The Board voted to maintain the same compensation for election judges at $15 per election.

The board selected the main jury list for the county and also drew 450 names from the jury list as requested by judges of courts of record in Cass county. These will be placed in a jury box from which petit jurors will be drawn for the year beginning September 8, 1959.

Action on the proposal for a county tax for Cixil Defense purposes was deferred to the September 25 meeting. The Crawford Lumber Company, of Virginia, was awarded the contract for furnishing coal to the county buildings, including the courthouse, and jail, for the 1959-1960 season. Their bid was $10.75 per ton and was the lowest of three bids submitted.

First Week Activities Open 131st Year At Illinois College

Innumerable faculty-student conferences were a part of the normal day's activities when students registered for their classes for the first semester of the school year. Margaret Ma of Hong Kong, British Crown Colony, confers with Dr. Ethel Seybold, co-chairman of the Department of English.

Lectures, Exams Fill First Week Schedule At Hilltop Campus

Autumn 1959 has launched a new college year across the nation, the 131st such year for Jacksonville's own Illinois College. The past week of intense and prolonged activity on the hill left in its wake lectures, examinations, parties, classes, speeches and at the end a band of united and loyal supporters for the first football game of the season.

Enrollment Increased

Although registration is as yet incomplete for the first semester of the 1959-60 year, enrollment at the College is already somewhat higher than last year's near record figure.

Jacksonville residents as usual represent a significant proportion of the student body, and a large majority of the students call Illinois their home state. The move into the residence halls during the week, however, brought forth young men and women from all over the nation—California to the west, North Dakota to the north, Massachusetts and the eastern seaboard to the east, and Texas and Florida to the south.

Distance honors among the students go to Margaret Ma, who finds herself on these crisp autumn days 8,000 miles from home, the island of Hong Kong off the south coast of China.

But in a situation rarely experienced on the American college campus, some of the faculty members at Illinois College can top any of the distances separating students from their homes. Maung Hla Shwe of Burma is teaching History on the Hilltop, while Dr. Vidyapati Singh of India is conducting classes in Economics and Accounting.

Adults Too

The nation's youth is not the sole resource for raw material in the Illinois College educational enterprise. Adults of the Jacksonville area will join campus residents in an evening course "India in the Modern World," taught by Dr. Singh.

Through the efforts and support of the National Science Foundation, high school science and mathematics teachers will also gather every week in Hilltop classrooms to serve as students in an In-Service Institute. Designed as an aid to improve the preparation of the teachers, and consequently the quality of science and mathematics teaching, the area program is drawing participants from a score of high schools within a radius of 50 miles of Jacksonville.

Emphasis On Education

The major emphasis of the College, however, remains in the higher education of young adults reaching maturity. Led by personalities such as Professor Earle Miller in Mathematics, Dr. Joe Patterson Smith in History, and Dr. Eleanor Miller in Psychology, all beginning their 33rd year of teaching in Illinois College classrooms, the faculty like all teachers, is dedicated to its purpose.

Indication of the emphasis can be seen in the careful attention to the individual preparation and needs of each student. Examples are the placement of qualified freshmen in advanced courses in English and Mathematics at the very beginning of their college careers.

At the end of only one week, freshmen are already harking back to a statement heard in their initial college meeting. President L. Vernon Caine said, "This is one of the most important days in your lives."

The world wishes them well (in Jacksonville and elsewhere) in the preparation and achievement among the problems of our times.

Plans Go Forward For Church Census

With the selection of all of the chairmen from each of the cooperating churches, the preparation for the all-city church census which will be conducted Sept. 27 are nearing completion.

Mrs. Vernon O. Caine and Mrs. James Coultas, co-chairmen of the project, have added Oliver Buck to the staff to assist Edward Bargery, who is serving as field chairman. Mrs. Caine and Mrs. Coultas are working with the Jacksonville Council of Churches.

Additional chairmen from the cooperating churches were appointed during the week. All church chairmen will set up their visiting group during the coming week, and the chairmen and ministers will attend a meeting next Sunday, Sept. 20, at which material to be used in the census will be explained and distributed.

FOOD STORES STATE'S BIGGEST SALES TAX PAYERS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Retail food stores, especially groceries, were the biggest Illinois sales tax payers in the fiscal year ended June 30.

The State Revenue Department said Saturday revenue from 10 major types of business provided $304,658,646. Of this, $164,747,700 was collected in Cook County, $132,092,912 from downstate and $7,818,033 from out-of-state.

White Hall City Council Discusses Streets, Gas

WHITE HALL—The City Council met Tuesday night in the City Hall building with Mayor J. W. Baldwin in charge. Mrs. Nova Lyons read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved.

She then read a petition which was signed by 73 residents, asking the city to open a street between Maple Heights Addition and Alternate Route 67. Such a passage once existed through the private property of the drain tile plant but was closed due to added building improvements on the property. The matter was discussed and referred to City Attorney Julian Hutchens.

The members then discussed the advisability of the city asking for a Group 2 rating with the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. which has been furnishing natural gas for the city in a Group 3 capacity, up to 1,900,000 feet. Since city users used up to 1,805,000 cubic feet of gas during peak months of last winter, and approximately 25 additional gas users have been added to the list since that time, it would run the city's gas consumption dangerously close to or over the maximum amount allowed which incurs a penalty of $10 per thousand cubic feet over the maximum. The matter was shelved until members of the Council can meet with Frank L. Baxter of the Panhandle Company.

The council voted to place two additional street lights, one in the intersection triangle of Routes 106 and Alternate 67 on the east side of the street directly opposite the triangle. The second light will be placed on East Sherman Street between the G.M. & O. and Burlington railroad tracks. Three large trees in front of the White Hall Hospital on North Main Street will be removed, in charge of Bernard McBride of the CIPS Co., the debris to be hauled away by the city.

The flowers from which bees gather nectar largely determine the color, flavor and aroma of honey. If a jar of honey does not have the flower source on the label, the sweet is probably a blend of different floral honeys.

MAYOR GREETS MITCHELL

Mayor Robert A. DuBois, left, extends a hearty welcome to Stephen A. Mitchell, former Democratic National Chairman, at the Dunlap hotel Friday evening.

The meeting was one of a series of downstate appearances by Mitchell in an effort to sound out probable support if he tries for the nomination for governor next Spring.

'Race For Governor May Be Hot Contest For 1960:' Mitchell

Stephen A. Mitchell, former Democratic national chairman, spoke to a capacity audience at the banquet room of the Dunlap hotel Friday evening as Morgan and surrounding county Democrats turned out in large numbers. Estimated attendance at the rally was upward of 125 persons — one of the best attended rallies held in recent years.

County, city and party officeholders were introduced following the talk by Mitchell.

Expect Hot Contest

Mitchell told the assembled party workers that the advent of television and mass communications has no longer placed the nomination in the hands of a "few." He cited examples of both party conventions where the nominations were the result of delegates' votes rather than small meetings.

National figures are now more before the people than ever before. National and state politics has moved into the question and answer type of campaigns where everyone takes an active part.

Money Biggest Problem

Finance and money problems are the biggest problems in the State of Illinois, according to Mitchell. School taxes and issues are moving more and more into the field of high finance as aid increases, Mitchell said "qualified" personnel could supply the necessary experience and judgment to guide the financial picture into a healthy atmosphere. He condemned "secret government operations" carried on by the present administration.

He contended that Stratton lost the confidence of the people.

Mitchell said he expects to announce his 1960 political plans about Nov. 1, but left a definite impression that he will be a candidate in the Democratic primary.

He contended that voters are rebelling against political bosses and cited the recent New York City election where Carmine DeSapio, boss of the old Tammany Hall, barely won election in his own aldermanic district by a majority of 600 votes out of 9,000 cast.

Most observers feel Mitchell is on a downstate tour to determine just how much support he could muster in case he tries for the Democratic nomination without the support of the Cook county political machine.

Mayor Invites Friends

In another surprise move of the evening, Mayor Robert A. DuBois invited all of his "Democratic friends" to attend next Monday's City Council meeting to hear a full report on the fire chief situation.

"It seems it has become unpopular to dismiss a city official," he said. "I have exercised quite a bit of restraint and have been very considerate in the entire matter. Monday night I will make formal charges in a dignified manner, according to law."

Tiny Laos: A Tough Place To Keep Out Reds

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's a closeup on the remote spot of Laos by one of the few foreign correspondents who has traveled its rivers and jungles up to the Red China border. NEA Special Correspondent Edward R. Kennedy was a frequent visitor to Laos when he was based at Bangkok, Siam, covering Southeast Asia. Now back in this country, he reveals little known details about the kingdom.

* * *

By EDWARD R. KENNEDY
NEA Special Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Tiny Laos, flickering with the threat of a new brush fire war in Southeast Asia, looms as one of the most difficult spots on earth for America and the West to assist in resistance to Communist aggressions.

Our air striking force and the 7th Fleet, poised in the Pacific, could do little to aid landlocked Laos, which cuts a rugged, curving path through tropical southeastern Asia.

Efficient carrier-based air operations seem unlikely. The nearest land bases are several hundred miles from the fighting scene.

Nuclear weapons could find no targets. The fighting in Laos' mountainous north is between lightly armed 100 and 200 man patrols which lash out at each other and then fade into the jungles.

When I was in Laos I found the 25,000-man Laotian army a tough little corps, mostly paratroopers, skilled in small unit operations, highly pro-American. But its 35 battalions are spread thin hunting down the Red infiltrators.

The country's frail economy, whose chief support is opium, can't finance the defense effort. American aid—$50 million annually since 1955—pays the army's bills. On top of that, we supply military advisers and technicians.

Even this effort is undercut. My first-hand look at Laos disclosed waste and corruption that makes the recently exposed situation in South Viet Nam appear almost efficient by contrast.

This slender country, now in fresh peril, embarked upon shaky independence after the 1954 Geneva settlements that divided Viet Nam and took the French out of Indo-China.

At that moment, it had one engineer, one trained doctor. No soldier had risen beyond the rank of corporal in the French Infantrie Coloniale. Most Laotians farm the mountain slopes, raising rice, maize and tobacco.

Internal roads lead just a few miles north and south of Vientiane, the capital on the western border. In tropical rain they are impassable. There is no rail network.

The country's chief links with the world are rail-truck routes through neighboring Thailand from Bangkok to Vientiane, and the Mekong river, over which barge shipments move on a months-long journey to inland areas.

The nearly three million Laotians are largely illiterate. They have no understanding of problems beyond the village level.

While American aid has sustained the army, it has had little or no effect on poverty. Our program has in fact been such a flop from that viewpoint that Communists turn it to their advantage. Say the Reds: "The Americans make the rich richer and the poor people poorer."

In 1954 Communist guerrilla units grabbed control of two northern Laotian provinces. The rugged terrain was ideal for their depredations. But in 1958 I saw these zones handed over to the central government in a deal between two half brothers.

Prince Souvanaphuma, head of the Red-controlled Pathet Laos movement in the north, gained a cabinet post under his half brother, Prince Soupanavong, then Prime Minister. The latter promptly allowed elections which the Reds won in a sweep.

Thereafter came a series of Coups which brought the half brothers' ouster. The Red leader was jailed. Prince Sananikone, another member of the Grand Families, took over the reins with America's blessing. Since then Laos officially has had strong pro-Western leanings.

Sananikone ordered the royal army to integrate Red troops within their ranks, an arrangement originally planned in the half brothers' deal before their ouster. A battalion of Pathet Laos troops, some 600 strong, fled into the hills to escape the order.

These soldiers form the nucleus of the guerrilla forces now pressing southward in harassing raids toward Luang Prabang, the royal capital, and Vientiane, the administrative center.

Laos' internal turmoil and its strategic position have made it a natural probing spot for the Communists.

Today it's a slender buffer between the Reds in China and North Viet Nam and both Thailand and South Viet Nam, pro-Western. It also blocks off the Reds from neutral Cambodia, another small land once part of Indo-China. Neutral Burma likewise has a small border with Laos.

Not far to the south and west is the long peninsula of newly independent Malaya, steppingstone to shaky Indonesia.

While we and the West ponder how to keep those points blocked off, Laos' fate seems to hang on those tough little paratroopers whose weekly wages we Americans pay. Asian freedom is at a critical test.

Make Your Town Example Of Democracy

Women Have Large Role In Fighting Communism

By ALICIA HART,
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— The best way housewives can combat communism is to see that the reputation of their communities is as spick-and-span as the inside of their homes.

Who says so? Dorothy McCullough Lee, chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board, ex-mayor of Portland, Ore., and onetime child prodigy. She believes women should tolerate no condition that degrades or denies anyone his constitutional rights, because the Reds are constantly on the lookout for such conditions to feed their anti-American propaganda machine.

"Women should do their best to make their towns shining examples of what our democracy stands for," she says. "They should make sure that nothing occurs in their communities that violates the democratic concepts on which this country was founded."

One way to put this community-wide housekeeping vigilance into action, she explains, is by organizing and joining responsible groups to correct abuses. "A lot can be done through organizing," she says, "but not everything." She feels that another effective combatant is to personally contact neighbors and alert them to undemocratic situations.

"The more shining examples that other countries can see of the U.S. and its people in action, the more persuasive we can be in selling democracy to them," she says.

She regards her service on the SACB as one of the most important and challenging jobs of her life. SACB is a five-member group, appointed by the President. It determines whether groups accused by the Attorney General of conducting Red activities are actually Communist dominated.

Mrs. Lee insists that the job has no place for the so called woman's intuition.

"The SACB is strictly an open court with all the constitutional safeguards provided," she says. "It's a very meticulous and legalistic operation. The closest thing you can compare my job to is being on the bench.

"In this type of work you can't use intuition. It's a fact-finding job. You can't guess. You have got to listen to evidence and decide the case impartially."

Anyway, Mrs. Lee says that she seriously doubts that there is such a thing as woman's intuition, at least the way the term usually is used. "Actually," she explains, "intuition is not a flash out of the blue. I believe it's knowledge that's based on your past experiences in life."

If Mrs. Lee's definition is correct, friends say that she should be one of the most intuitive people in the world. For she has lived all over the globe and worked in a wide variety of important and interesting jobs.

"Since my dad was a naval officer," she says, "I spent most of my younger years globe-trotting. I grew up in Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, China, Guam and all the European countries. I had little formal grade school education. We were never in any place long enough."

Mrs. Lee received most of her early education from tutors. Until she entered high school in Newport, R. I., her only classroom learning consisted of two brief grammar school enrollments in San Francisco, and Switzerland. Nevertheless, she was graduated from high school in 3½ years when she was 16.

Dorothy McCullough Lee

By the time she was 22, she had received her law degree from the University of California. In 1929, Mrs. Lee was elected to the Oregon House of Representatives where she served three years. Then she was elected to the State Senate and served there until 1943.

During her years in the state legislature, Mrs. Lee was also chairman of the Oregon Crime Commission, a member of the Portland Traffic Safety Commission, and a municipal judge. In 1948, while serving as Portland's Commissioner of Public Utilities, she was elected mayor. She stayed in office for the next four years.

In 1953, the State Department sent her to Germany as a civic and governmental affairs advisor to German city officials. Later, President Eisenhower appointed her to the U. S. Board of Parole. She joined the SACB in 1956 and became its chairman the following year.

Mrs. Lee is married and has two adopted children.

CHICAGO (AP)—On three days this week the butcher hog market hit its lowest peak price in 3½ years as the supply climbed to 40,000 head, the largest since in June. Offerings on the 12 major markets were the largest since February.

With the market ranging downward from $14.00 a hundredweight on the three days, buyers took some of all grades and weights up to 270 lbs in the same price range. Heavier weights, however, were seasonally scarce.

For the period, barrows and gilts were 25 to 50 cents lower, sows weak to 25 cents lower.

Despite an increase of 25 per cent in cattle receipts, slaughter steer prices were steady to 25 cents higher for high choice and prime grades. Offerings grading average choice and below, however, were steady to 50 cents lower.

Cattle on sale at the 12 major markets were in largest volume in almost two years.

The firmness in spots was credited to cooler weather, curtailed slaughter in the previous holiday week and a stronger wholesale market for beef in the east.

The sheep market absorbed supplies up 60 per cent from the previous week at prices 50 to 75 cents higher for spring slaughter lambs and strong to 50 cents higher for yearlings. Ewes were steady.

Buyers said the higher prices were related to the advances for carcass lamb at major meat centers.

ALL CORN FUTURES, SOYBEANS LOSE

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—The extended price declines on the Board of Trade carried all corn futures contracts to a succession of new low prices for the season again this week.

September soybeans also sank to a new low and some of the new crop months ended the week near the bottoms for the year on setbacks ranging nearly two cents a bushel.

There were a few gains but they were scattered and reflected a shifting of trade positions rather than an improvement in commercial influences.

Most interest centered again in soybeans where prices reacted mainly to initial moderate hedging from the impending harvest and conflicting private crop reports. Otherwise trade volume was slow, continuing near the smallest of the year.

Reports of meager selling of wheat into commercial channels had a steadying effect on that grain.

The only bullish influence of the week had only a slight temporary effect. It was a report to the American Soybean Assn. by F. E. Hunt, a crop expert in Adair.

Hunt told the association that in a personal survey of the crop he had found development below normal and predicted the yield would not exceed 500 million bushels. The Department of Agriculture in its September report estimated the crop at about 532½ million bushels.

At the end of the week, wheat was ¼ cent a bushel higher to 1 cent lower, September $1.91⅛-¼; corn ¼-1⅞ lower, September $1.14¾-⅞; oats 2¼ higher to ⅝ lower, September new type contract 67⅛-⅛; rye 3 cents lower to ¾ higher, September $1.29¾-30; soybeans 1¼-1⅞ lower, September $2.05⅞-2.06.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS

CHICAGO (AP)—Estimated livestock receipts for Monday are 22,000 cattle, 9,000 hogs and 3,000 sheep.

A four hundred acre grain and dairy farm located five miles east of Carrollton, Ill., on route 108 was sold at public auction Saturday at the Greene County Court House in Carrollton, Ill. Purchaser of the property was Bob Price of Carrollton who offered $82,800 for the farm. The land was part of the estate of the late Lynn Maholland.

The property consisted of a 280 acre farm with 200 acres in cultivation and a well improved modern house; and a 120 acre farm with 75 acres in cultivation, without improvements. Price purchased both tracts.

Attorneys for the sale were John S. Self and G. R. Schwartz of Jerseyville, and auctioneer was Kendall Seely of White Hall.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to decline sharply this week and reached its lowest level since mid-February.

It was the third straight week of severe losses.

The week was a historic one. A Russian rocket reached the moon. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev began touring the United States.

Important as these items were, Wall Streeters laid greater stress on continuously tightening credit and higher interest rates. Depressing, too, were the widening effects of the steel strike as it dragged into its third month.

The Soviet moon rocket had only a temporary effect, giving the space age stocks a brief spurt on Monday. Khrushchev's impact on Wall Street was one that bred caution rather than selling. The market waited to see what, if anything, he would propose that would be new in its effect on stock prices. As the week ended, nothing developed in this respect. So the watch-and-wait mood continued.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $5.30 to $217.40 for its worst weekly loss since the week ended Oct. 12, 1957, when the average fell $8.20.

The drop in the AP average put that barometer to its lowest point since Feb. 18 when it stood at $216.90.

Volume remained routine but rose to 12,222,297 shares from 11,138,515 the previous week. The number of losers rose to 1,038 from 1,017 the week before while gainers dwindled to 236 from 248 the week previous.

Such "big stocks" as General Motors and Jersey Standard dropped about a point each and U.S. Steel fell 3⅝ to 99⅞.

Eisenhower also swatted the Democratic-ruled Congress on other issues. He said the lawmakers were responsible for "needed gains" in some fields, but that they were responsible also for "many disappointing failures."

He dealt specifically with these matters:

Other Matters

1. Passage of the labor control bill was an important step toward labor reform, Eisenhower said. But he directed his congratulations primarily to the American people "for it was due to their outspoken indignation that ineffective legislation was set aside and that reasonably sturdy barriers were erected against abuses that for years have injured the cause of American labor."

The labor bill was enacted by Congress after Eisenhower went on nationwide television and radio to appeal for approval of the measure.

Lists Disappointments

2. His foremost disappointment in the record of Congress, Eisenhower said, "was the refusal to establish the necessary authority for sound management of the public debt." He was referring to the shelving of his request for removal of the interest ceiling on long-term government bonds.

3. Another disappointment, Eisenhower went on, was that "the majority in Congress seems to find it so difficult to wean itself from the pork barrel." That was an obvious allusion to the over-riding by Congress of his veto of a bill carrying $1,200,000,000 for hundreds of local area projects.

4. The Congress once more, Eisenhower said, "refused to put our postal service on a self-sustaining basis." He had asked for a new boost in postal rates.

5. The President also criticized cuts made in the foreign aid program. He said that program was "deeply slashed, with potentially serious consequences for us all." He added: ". . . Americans are entitled to expect better of the Congress than this."

6. The President termed it gratifying that Congress in the end provided funds to continue the national highway construction program, "but at a lower rate than I recommended."

7. "The Congress again failed to make a realistic approach to our serious agricultural problems," Eisenhower said.

On the foreign policy front, Eisenhower expressed appreciation to members of both parties "who have approached in a bipartisan manner most of the matters important to the nation's security and the conduct of foreign relations."

Nikita Complains About Tight Security Net

Much of the laughter was occasioned by an exchange between Khruschev and 20th Century-Fox president Spyros Skouras.

The audience, many of whose names are household words wherever American movies are shown, seemed to be unable to make out quite what Khrushchev was up to. The Skouras-Khrushchev exchange struck actress Shelley Winters, for example, as sounding "like two kids arguing 'My old man is better than your old man.'"

There was little in the general public reaction to the Khrushchev visit to distinguish it from the welcomes in New York and Washington. It was orderly. There was some waving, some clapping, but little in the way of excitement. It was curiosity.

But Khrushchev was in a bouncy mood anyway, as he entered the commissary to lunch with Hollywood executives and stars and California business leaders.

The tone of the remarkable interlude may well have been set when the irrepressible actress, Elizabeth Taylor, unable to get a satisfactory look at the Soviet premier from her seat, climbed up on the table to stare at him.

When the dishes had been cleared, Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, introduced Skouras, who spoke of his own humble beginnings as a Greek immigrant. He then expressed regret that American motion pictures were not permitted to be shown in the U.S.S.R.

"Let's hurry up about it," Khrushchev shouted.

The Soviet premier, smashing the established custom of after-luncheon speeches, tapped Skouras on the sleeve and popped to his feet.

"Zhukov!" he roared out over the audiences' heads to Georgi A. Zhukov, the cultural exchange expert who is making the tour with him. "How many films have we chosen, Zhukov?"

"Thirty," replied Zhukov, laughing.

"How many films are available?" bellowed Khrushchev.

"Seven," replied Zhukov from the audience.

"The agreement was signed a year ago and now we have to implement it," said Khrushchev, still on his feet.

Skouras interrupted.

"Here, Mr. Chairman, every company has its own boss, and the law advises to check every contract."

"Dig into your own contracts," retorted Khrushchev. "We don't need to dig into the ones we've signed."

Another shoal was directly ahead. Trying to go on with his speech, Skouras remarked:

"Your country is the greatest corporation, in a capitalist term, is the greatest monopoly the world has ever known."

That was too much for Khrushchev. He interrupted again. "A very good monopoly."

As soon as he was on his feet for his own speech, Khrushchev began twitting Skouras, calling him "my fellow Greek."

It then came Skouras' turn to heckle Khrushchev. The Soviet boss had just referred to his term as premier of the Soviet Ukraine a decade ago.

"How many prime ministers are there in Russia?" Skouras interrupted.

"How many presidents are there in the United States?" Khrushchev snapped back. But then he said he'd answer the question anyway. There was one over-all prime minister in the U. S. S. R., himself. There were prime ministers of the 15 constituent Soviet republics and others of the autonomous republics.

"Do you have that many presidents?" Khrushchev retorted.

"There are two million presidents of American companies," said Skouras.

Khrushchev called on a Soviet metallurgist in the audience to stand up. The Russians, he said, have a "people's monopoly—he (pointing to the metallurgist) doesn't own anything but the pants he wears."

Khrushchev spoke a few perfunctory words at the airport, the usual remarks about his pleasure at being the guest of the city. But it was different at the studios. But that time Khrushchev had warmed up and was talking spontaneously.

"This city of yours with its wonderful sunshine reminds me very much of the Crimea, or perhaps of Baku," Khrushchev said. "We also have oil wells around Baku."

On the flight here, sometimes from a distance of 31,000 feet, he saw these areas: Cleveland, Toledo, Gary, Lake Mead and the Hoover Dam, as well as mountains flecked with snow and the sun-baked New Mexico, Arizona regions. The plane flew close to the Grand Canyon.

En route by limousine to the studio, Khrushchev passed hundreds of low and medium priced homes, painted in pastel colors.

From the people along the motorcade route, Khrushchev got much the same sort of reserved but polite reception he received in Washington and New York.

At times he got a smattering of applause. Occasionally, someone would wave lazily to him.

Khrushchev could hear the tolling of church bells. One church had a big sign which said: "Westchester Lutheran Church Pray Khrushchev Be Converted to Christianity.

The security precautions had been massive, including use of the most modern electronic instruments for testing the food. Security men personally tested the food being served Khrushchev and escorted his plate into the dining room where four waitresses were assigned to serve him.

Hours before Khrushchev's plane landed, police cordoned off an area of the airport set aside for reception of the visitors. No one without special credentials was permitted within this area, located about a mile from the commercial passenger terminal.

And, as soon as a ramp for Khrushchev's plane had been moved up to the door, Air Force police quickly closed in around the base of the steps. One officer had his hand poised near his revolver.

After a two-minute delay, Khrushchev came down the stairs, followed by Mrs. Khrushchev, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, and other members of the Premier's family and official party.

As she stepped down the ramp Mrs. Khrushchev was handed a bouquet of bird of paradise, the city's official flower.

Mayor Norris Poulson greeted the Soviet party by saying: 'Gentlemen, we welcome you to Los Angeles, the City of Angels, the city where the impossible always happens."

It was the shortest official greeting Khrushchev has thus far received. However, he smiled in response and pulled out his light-rimmed bifocals and prepared to read his response.

"May I thank you for this welcome—for your greeting," he said.

"I am happy to avail myself of the opportunity to visit your city and speak with its representatives and exchange opinions with them."

After his brief response, Khrushchev appeared anxious to cut the ceremony short. He walked away from the microphone and without further ado indicated he was ready to drive into town.

From the airport, the motorcade headed for the 20th Century-Fox studio.

Just a few among the actors and actresses on the luncheon guest list were Gary Cooper, Tony Curtis, Kirk Douglas, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Danny Kaye, David Niven, Deborah Kerr, Kim Novak, Ginger Rogers, June Allyson, Judy Garland, Zsa Zsa Gabor, and Arlene Dahl.

Two Injured As Car Overturns Near Bluffs

A teenage mother of a three weeks old daughter is in critical condition and her husband seriously injured following an accident early Saturday morning on the Bluffs-Naples road.

She is 18-year-old Mrs. Marie Lewis Hoots and has been staying with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Hoots, 717 East Douglas avenue, while her husband, Ronnie Hoots, attends Disabled Veterans School at Springfield, Mo. The latter was home for the weekend and the young couple was en route to Mr. Hoots' cabin on the Illinois River when the accident occurred.

Loose Gravel

Hoots' car, a 1957 Ford, is reported to have struck loose rock and sand on the gravel road and overturned several times. Mrs. Hoots was thrown from the car and it is believed the automobile overturned on her.

Goes For Help

Ronnie Hoots, also injured, made his way from the wrecked automobile to a farm house where a call was put through for aid. The Bates ambulance from Bluffs took the injured couple to Passavant Hospital where they were admitted at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Hoots underwent emergency surgery immediately and Ronnie Hoots went to surgery a short time later Saturday. Mrs. Hoots has multiple fractures and some internal injuries. Mr. Hoots, while seriously injured, is not considered critical.

Mrs. Ronnie Hoots is the daughter of Mrs. Joe Murphy of Springfield, Mo.

The couple had left their small daughter with the elder Hoots because there is no heat in the river cabin. Ronnie Hoots had planned to go squirrel hunting Saturday morning.

Volk To Patton Pass In Final 13 Seconds Gives IC Close Win

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Bobby Volk connected with Jim Patton for a 22-yard touchdown pass in the last 13 seconds Saturday to give Illinois College a 32-26 victory over Central College of Missouri.

It was the football opener for both schools.

Volk's pass climaxed a 61-yard drive in the last two minutes to snap a 26-26 deadlock. Patton, a second string fullback, gained 30 yards in 6 rushes in the drive.

Illinois College led 26-12 at halftime but Central rallied, capped by a tying 48-yard touchdown run by halfback Al Herman.

Volk, a Springfield, Ill., product, also pitched two other scoring aerials, a 75-yarder to fullback Chauncey Whitaker and a 4-yard toss to end Ed Puck.

IC Roars Back

After Central had taken the lead, Illinois College came roaring back with a sustained drive following the ensuing kickoff. From their own 33, they drove 67 yards for the tying tally climaxed by Dick Orendorff's six-yard scamper, Ken Mock's conversion try barely cleared the uprights and IC enjoyed a 7-6 spread.

The eventual losers capitalized on a poor Blueboy pass defense to go out in front again on a 20 yard pass and a 35 yard run combination, Fullback Chauncey Whitaker put the Brooksmen ahead minutes later when he took a pass from quarterback Bobby Volk and traveled 75 yards for the leading lady. The Blueboys capped a 90 yard march with 6:15 remaining before halftime when Volk hit end Ed Puck with a pass on a fourth down and four yards to go situation in the end zone.

The final IC touchdown in the first half came with Central threatening to score from the Blueboy 16. An attempted pass was deflected by a charging IC line and was picked off by Jim Marjancik a defensive end, and he toted the mail 82 yards aided by a key block on the Central 40. Mock shaved the cross bar on the PAT attempt and IC enjoyed their 26-12 spread.

Winning TD

Central knotted the count at 26-all late in the fourth period and Illinois had to go all out in the final two minutes with the ball on their own 31. On the drive, Jim Patton chewed up 30 yards in three rushing plays and Dick Orendorff got an important 18. The clutch play came from the 22 yard line when Volk connected to Patton on the goal stripe and his forward motion carried him into the end zone with 13 seconds left on the clock.

Volk hit three of six passes good for 101 yards. The receivers accounting for the yardage were Whitaker, 75, Patton 22, and Puck 4.

Pettit Has Faculty For Rising To The Occasion With A Sterling Performance When Needed Most

Defining greatness has become one of the most flagrantly violated practices of writing. Constant misuse has reduced the term to a mere cliche, but there is nothing commonplace about the greatness of Bob Pettit, the celebrated scoring machine of the St. Louis Hawks. His is a genuine and distinctive talent, and, like the true super-star that he is, Pettit has the faculty for rising to the occasion with a peak performance when it is needed the most.

He proved it in the final game of the 1957-58 NBA playoffs when he scored 19 of the Hawks' final 21 points as the Hawks won a 110-109 hairraiser.

Heroics such as he worked in that game have been Pettit's trademark ever since he came into the pro league in 1954. That year, as a hot-shot All-American from LSU, learning to adapt himself to the more demanding style of the pros, Bob finished fourth in the league in scoring. Then a newly-polished jump shot which was to make him the deadliest shooter in the NBA moved him swiftly to the top of the scoring tables in his sophomore year. Bob led the league in scoring, average points per game and rebounds—and his status as an All-Star was firmly established. (He's been named to the League All - Star team five times).

Bob picked up right where he left off at the start of the 1956-57 campaign, grabbing the lead in all the offensive departments worth mentioning, and he seemed headed for an even greater year. But, with, about six weeks left in the race, he fractured a wrist during a game with Boston, and he was forced to play out the season with a cast on his arm. The injury cost him the scoring title he had all but nailed down, and he had to settle for second place behind the Philadelphia Warriors' Paul Arizin. With a healthy Pettit playing spectacular basketball, the Hawks fought all the way to the seventh game of the NBA finals before losing to the Celtics in overtime.

Pettit had an ordinary year — for him — in 1957-58. He came in third in both scoring, with a 1,719 points, and in shooting average, with 24.6 per game, and he was second to Bill Russell in rebounds, with 1,216. It was scarcely an unproductive year for Bob, but much of what he did went unnoticed as other Hawks like Cliff Hagan and Slater Martin took up some of the scoring slack, and with them, the Hawks became for the first time a more balanced team. The attack didn't depend as heavily on Bob as it had in past seasons. He played with an ungainly brace protecting a fractured finger for a month during the season, but this was no novelty to him by now.

Last year, the Bayou Bomber really went to town. Managing to get through the season without an injury, Big Bob set an all-time single-season scoring mark of 2,105 points and a new per-game of 29.2. He won the NBA scoring crown going away; set a new field goal record of 719 and a free throw conversion total of 667. Teaming with Cliff Hagan he set a new two-man scoring mark of 3,812 points, and with Clyde Lovellette, and Hagan, a new three-man scoring mark of 4,821.

He won his third All-Star game MVP award, in five tries, sharing this one with Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis and his second NBA MVP award, (this one picked by the league players). He was chosen, for the fifth time, to the NBA First Team All-League squad, and he won another Hickok Pro Athlete Award of the Month. (Pettit has been chosen four times, the most of anyone).

Acclaimed as the greatest player in the game today, Pettit can look back to the day he joined the Hawks, in September of 1954, when he vowed "to stay a season and see if I liked it."

The Hawks hope he'll stay for a dozen more.

Norbert McGinnis, chairman of the ticket sales for the St. Louis Hawks - Syracuse Nationals pro game in the JHS Bowl October 14, reports that the tickets are selling at a fast clip. Early returns almost assure the Knights of Columbus a sell-out crowd. Ticket reservations are being accepted at Mac's Clothing Store and those desiring tickets by mail should enclose a self-addressed envelope.

Georgia Downs Alabama, 17-3

By MERCER BAILEY

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Aerial artistry by Francis Tarketon and Gordon Kelly and a twisting 40-yard touchdown run by Bilt Godfrey lifted Georgia to a 17-3 Southeastern Conference football victory over Alabama Saturday.

It was the first opening game victory for the Bulldogs since 1954, which also was the last year they posted a winning record.

Tarkenton, a ball-handling wizard and a bullseye passer, also showed some terrific running form on Georgia's second touchdown drive. Seemingly trapped trying to pass, he wiggled his way into the clear and dashed 19 yards to the five. Two plays later he sneaked across from the one.

His long-gained passes to Kelly, a man with gifted hands, kept Georgia percolating at key times in both touchdown drives.

Most of Alabama's offense came in the third period when the Crimson Tide took the second half kickoff and moved steadily down field behind sophomore quarterback Pat Trammell and halfback sprinter Marlin Dyess. The Georgia defense jelled and Fred Sington booted a 23-yard field goal.

Wildcats Down Reserves, 75-0

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Halfback Ron Burton scored five touchdowns—two on long punt runbacks, in Northwestern's annual pre-season intrasquad game Saturday.

Burton reversed his field, outraced the defense and scored on runbacks of 76 and 65 yards as the Wildcats first and second teams defeated the reserves 75-0.

The game was played behind locked gates. Burton's other touchdowns were on a 65-yard pass play from quarterback Dick Thornton and on runs of 4 and 5 yards.

Weatherwise Wins Futurity

NEW YORK (AP) — Greentree Stable's Weatherwise, with Eddie Arcaro up, came slashing down the middle of the track Saturday with an overwhelming stretch run and captured the $143,200 Futurity Stakes for 2 year olds before a crowd of 47,412 at New Aqueduct.

Weatherwise, a son of the great Tom Fool, who won the 1951 Futurity down the Belmont Park straight course, scored by 1½ lengths over George D. Widener's Udaipur. All Hands got third money by a head over A. J. Ostriker's Catapult in the field of 12.

Weatherwise, third choice in the wagering, came from seventh place to collect first money of $88,470.50 and was clocked in 1:18 3-5 for the 6½ furlongs on a fast track. The winner returned $9.80, $5.50 and $4.30.

Suggs Maintains Atlanta Lead

The little slugger playing out of Sea Island, Ga., shot four birdies on the home route as she came in with a 33. That gave her an even par 71 and a total of 215 over the 6,265-yard Continental Colony Club course.

Beverly Hanson of Indo, Calif., who led at the end of the second round, skidded to a 77 for a 220, five strokes back of Miss Suggs.

When Indians Are Eliminated, Gordon Is Out

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Lane said Saturday he expects to name a new field manager for the Cleveland Indians about the middle of next week. But odds are that Joe Gordon, who offered his resignation last night, won't be around to greet his replacement.

Lane, the volatile Cleveland general manager, tied Gordon's immediate future to the Indians' fading pennant hopes. He let it be known that whenever the Indians are eliminated from contention for the American League pennant he will replace Gordon temporarily with veteran pitching coach Mel Harder.

Lane was disappointed by Cleveland's drop from first place, and his recent criticisms of Gordon touched off a bitter feud that was climaxed by Gordon's announcement he would not return next year under any circumstances.

Gordon said he has had no offers from other clubs but there have been rumors that he might be headed for the Detroit Tigers. There have been reports of interest from some other major league cities as well.

Mentioned prominently as a possible successor here is Leo Durocher, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants. Lane and Indian Vice President Nate Dolin talked to Durocher in Pittsburgh Friday. But Lane said Durocher is negotiating with someone else and won't know until next week whether he is interested in the Cleveland job.

Yankees Defeat Red Sox, 3-1

NEW YORK (AP) — A 4-hit pitching performance by Whitey Ford and the hitting of Marv Throneberry gave the New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday in a game honoring the veteran Yankee catcher, Yogi Berra. Attendance was 24,005.

Berra, who accepted a truck load of expensive gifts with tears in his eyes, didn't get a hit but he received fine support from his teammates. Throneberry blasted a home run and two singles while Bobby Richardson knocked in two runs with a single which extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

Ford had a one-hitter going until the eighth inning when the Red Sox scored their single run on two hits and an error.

Jerry Mallett, a rookie playing in his first game, singled to left, went to second when Richardson dropped a throw and scored on a single by Don Buddin.

Throneberry's homer, his eighth, led off the third inning for the Yanks. Richardson's blow came in the fifth, scoring Hector Lopez and Throneberry.

Dupo Scores As Time Runs Out To Gain 7-0 Triumph Over Tigers

A short desperation pass that covered 13 yards enabled Dupo to hit paydirt as time ran out and Jim Bonds' Tigers came out on the short end Saturday afternoon in their opener, 7-0.

Dupo had gained possession on Illinois Deaf's 35 yard line by a punt in the waning minutes of the fourth quarter. Aided by a 15-yard penalty plus a seven yard pass enabled Dupo to go within striking distance of the goal.

The Tiger forward wall, who was in the Dupo backfield throughout the game, hemmed in the Dupo QB, Jim Wolf, on his attempted pass but he got it off from the 17 and receiver Jim White ran the remaining 11 yards for the payoff tally as the final gun sounded. Wolf passed to Leroy Hogue for the point after touchdown and a 7-0 victory.

The visitors threatened several times in the first half but they had a 40-yard TD called back and they fumbled away another scoring chance on the two. Dupo threw away two other scoring chances in the final stanza by fumbling on the Tiger 4 and 8 yard lines.

Illinois Deaf's offense never presented a scoring threat and only once did they ever penetrate beyond the Dupo 20. ISD's defense was a different story however as the forward wall outcharged Dupo all afternoon.

The Birds rallied for two runs in the seventh on run scoring singles by Bob Boyd and Brooks Robinson, to take a 4-3 lead. Willie Tasby hit his 13th home run for an extra tally in the ninth as Tex Clevenger took the loss for the Senators.

FOOTBALL VALUE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Jay F. W. Pearson, University of Miami president, believes there is a definite place in college for football. In saluting the sport, Dr. Pearson says:

"The many values gained from football far outweigh any evils. The evils arise only when alumni and the community demand an annual championship."

Pirates Nudge Redlegs, 4-3, In 12 Innings

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Mazeroski's two-run triple in the 12th inning Saturday gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs and enabled relief pitcher Elroy Face to pick up his 18th victory of the season against one defeat.

Mazeroski, who homered in the third, delivered his game winning triple with two out. Face had given up three hits and a run to the Redlegs in the top of the 12th.

The victory increased the Pirates' hold on fourth place to four and a half games ahead of fifth place Cincinnati.

Cincinnati scored first in the third. Then Mazeroski tied it up with his homer.

In the sixth Vada Pinson reached first on an error, stole second and scored on Frank Thomas' single to put the Reds ahead again.

The Pirates pulled up even in the eighth when Don Hoak got on an error, advanced on Bill Virdon's single and scored on a double by pinch hitter Rocky Nelson.

The score remained that way until the Reds pushed over a single run in the 12th.

Chicago White Sox Rally Falls Short, 5-4

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Having waited 40 years, the Chicago White Sox apparently decided Saturday to put off for at least one more day winning the American League pennant. They lost to the Detroit Tigers 5-4 before 17,287.

The White Sox nearly overcame the Tigers with two out in the ninth when pinch-hitter Norm Cash belted a two-run homer.

Thus Cleveland, playing Saturday night in Kansas City, remained five games behind the White Sox. The magic number also stayed at two — any combination of Chicago victories and Cleveland defeats equalling two being the pennant clincher.

Detroit's Paul Foytack scattered 12 Chicago hits and notched his 14th victory against as many defeats. The White Sox used four hurlers — starter Dick Donovan who suffered his 10th setback against nine victories, Barry Latman, Ray Moore and Gerry Staley.

It was a close, if ragged game until the eighth when the Tigers sewed it up with a pair of singles by Foytack and Eddie Yost and Harvey Kuenn's two-run double against Staley.

Until the eighth, Staley had yielded only two hits in three previous scoreless innings.

Foytack held the White Sox scoreless from their two-run third until Nellie Fox' two-out single in the ninth which preceded Cash's homer. Ray Narleski replaced Foytack after Cash's blow and faced one batter, getting Ted Kluszewski to foul out to end the game.

Louisiana State Routs Stubborn Rice, 26-3

By ED TUNSTALL

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—All-America Billy Cannon's 17-yard touchdown run cracked the whip for Louisiana State's sluggish Tigers in the second half and the national champions smothered stubborn Rice 26-3 Saturday.

A crowd of 48,000 and a national television audience watched the Tiger attack swing into high gear after intermission.

Cannon's touchdown run came 10 plays after the third period opened. He took a hand-off from quarterback Warren Rabb and streaked down the sidelines for the first LSU score. The Tigers turned the game into a near rout in the fourth period.

Mut after Cannon hit paydirt in the third period, the Tigers roared into action.

Sophomore halfback Wendall Harris booted a 33-yard field goal in the opening minutes of the fourth period to send the Tigers into a 10-3 lead. With four minutes left, substitute halfback Tommy Neck scored from the 2 and the final Tiger tally came on a Rabb to Merle Schexnaildre pass covering 32 yards in the last 30 seconds.

Round Table Wins Nations Handicap

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Old Moneybags, Round Table, carried top weight of his career to a length and a quarter victory Saturday in the $100,000 United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City Race Track.

The world's richest horse packing 136 pounds, gave away from 14 to 22 pounds to his nine rivals in the classy field.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker, riding his third straight UN winner, kept Round Table with the pace set by Jaclyn Stable's Li'l Fella and at the top of the stretched tapped the sturdy horse lightly to gain the lead.

Round Table, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Travis Kerr, Oklahoma oil people, was trailed across the finish line by Crabgrass Stable's Noureddin, Li'l Fella and Mrs. Herbert Herff's Tudor Era.

The winner was timed in 1:55.1 for the mile and three-sixteenth run over the turf course and returned $3.60, $2.50 and $2.20.

St. Olaf Stops Beloit, 28-0

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (AP)—Beloit returned to the Midwest Conference football wars after a nine-year absence Saturday but was routed, 28-0, by too much St. Olaf firepower and its own fizzles.

Th Oles' hard-cracking defense forced three of the touchdowns and held Beloit to 92 yards on the ground.

A bad pass from center by Beloit put St. Olaf on the Beloit 27 in the first period and Don Jerries crashed over from the three a few minutes later.

A 20-yard pass from Denny Davis to Bill Greenslit moved the Oles into scoring position in the second period and Bob Algoe counted from the four.

Its offense smothered, Beloit was backed up to its end zone early in the fourth period and St. Olaf launched its third touchdown march from the Beloit 40. Algoe went over from the two. Stan Kleven blocked a Beloit punt later in the period and recovered on the 24. Greenslit circled right end from the 10 to score.

Ward Captures Hoosier Hundred

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rodger Ward of Indianapolis won the rich Hoosier Hundred auto race Saturday and nailed down his first national big car racing championship in 14 years of competition.

Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., defending USAC champion and only driver who had an outside chance to catch Ward, was wrecked a little more than halfway through the race but escaped injury.

Lee Drollinger of Champaign, Ill., finished 10th

DE KALB, Ill. (AP)—Quarterback Lew Flinn pitched four scoring aerials, including three to end Al Eck, Saturday to propel Northern Illinois University to a 35-8 upset victory over Wheaton College. It was a non-conference opener for both teams.

Northern Illinois rolled to a 14-0 lead late in the first quarter on a 70-yard run by fullback Joe Plaskas and a 35-yard pass from Flinn to Eck. Flinn converted both times.

Flinn, a 22-year-old senior from Princeton, Ill., collared Eck with a 12-yard toss in the second quarter and then converted to give Northern a 21-0 halftime lead over Wheaton.

Flinn's passes, a 1-yarder to Plaskas, and a toss for 38 yards to Eck, closed out Northern's scoring in the second half. Flinn again converted.

Wheaton, which has won the College Conference of Illinois title for 6 straight years, averted a shutout on quarterback Bruce Whipple's 16-yard run in the last quarter.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—Augustana College mustered two scoring drives in the second half and came from behind to defeat Carthage College Saturday in the football opener for both schools, 10-7.

Augustana scored a third quarter touchdown on a 93-yard advance in six plays, climaxed by Gordon Kelly's 15-yard scoring run.

Carthage took advantage of an Augustana fumble in the first quarter to open the scoring. The visitors ground out 26 yards in nine plays, with Stan Truckenbrod going over from the 1-yard line.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP — Butler University's Bulldogs clustered three touchdowns in less than 10 minutes of the third quarter and trounced the Bradley Braves of Peoria, Ill., 27-8, Saturday.

Butler, defending champion of the Indiana Collegiate Conference, gained 301 yards rushing to Bradley's 121. But the Braves had a 134-60 edge in the air.

The bulldogs took a 6-0 lead in the second quarter on a plunge by Ron Skirchak. They broke the game open in the third on a 41-yard touchdown run by Cliff Oilar, a 30-yard scoring sprint by Elmer O'Banion and another O'Banion strike of nine yards.

Bradley got its lone touchdown in the third, between O'Banion's runs, on a 68-yard pass play from Ron Hermann to J. D. Williams. Hermann passed to Bob Buttgen for the two extra points.

GRINNELL, Iowa (AP) — Monmouth held off three Grinnell scoring threats in the fourth quarter Saturday to preserve an 8-6 Midwest Conference victory in the football opener for both teams.

The Scots recovered a fumble on the Grinnell 34 and sent fullback Charles Lanstrom over from the one after 10 plays.

Grinnell's John Hartung scored in the third quarter after quarterback Bob Wolto returned an intercepted pass 58 yards to the Monmouth four. The Iowans were stopped on the 12 and 7 in the last period and were on the 2 when time ran out.

Coach Paul Bryant will have 9 seniors, 25 juniors and 33 sophomores on this year's University of Alabama football team

Hoffa Pays Surprise Visit To MSU Drill

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP — Teamster Union Boss James R. Hoffa was a surprise visitor to the Michigan State football practice field Saturday.

Hoffa was up to enroll his son, James P., 19, at MSU. He watched the workout for a while but left before newsmen could corner him for questions.

"He weighs about 200 pounds and is built like a boxcar across the shoulders," Daugherty said.

Daugherty was asked if young Hoffa is getting any help through college.

"Only what his father can afford to give him," Daugherty replied.

"But he is a good student and by next year he should be eligible for some kind of a scholarship," the coach said.

Miller Pitches Cards To 2-1 Win Over Cubs

ST. LOUIS (AP— Rookie Bob Miller pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday night.

Miller, 20, had a four-hitter going with two out in the ninth and a 2-1 lead when he was struck on the right leg by a line drive off the bat of Ernie Banks.

After Walt Moryn singled, Marshall Bridges took over and yielded a single to pinch-hitter Earl Averill. With runners on first and second, Lindy McDaniel relieved and retired pinch-hitter Art Shult on an infield grounder to end the game.

The Redbirds then made it 2-0 in the fifth.

Kentucky Bows To Tech, 14-12

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Georgia Tech's Engineers romped for two first half touchdowns Saturday night, then hung on like grim death to stave the ferocious gamblinig of Kentucky's Wildcats and preserve a 14-12 victory.

The second half was an entirely different story. Kentucky threw caution to the winds.

Third string quarterback Lowell Hughes, a senior from Prestonsburg, set off a surprising explosion with a fourth down pass deep in his own territory. It connected with end Tom Rodgers for 23 yards and a first down on the 48. That was the key to the first Wildcat touchdown and 2½ minutes later the home forces scored again with the aid of a recovered fumble.

But both times passes for two-point conversions failed to connect and the Engineers clung to their narrow lead.

Both Georgia Tech touchdowns came in the first quarter.

Kentucky's first score was a two-yard spring around right end by Calvin Bird from Corbin, to cap a 75-yard drive in 17 plays. It was only a minute later that Ronnie Cain dropped on a Georgia Tech fumble at the Kentucky 31 and the Wildcats needed only four plays with Charlie Sturgeon sprinting through a hole at tackle to ramble for 21 yards.

EUROPEAN RECORD

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Germany's Karl Kaufmann sprinted the 400 meters in 45.8 seconds for a European record Saturday.

The old mark of 46 flat was held jointly by Rudolf Harbig of Germany and M. Ignatiev of Russia. Lou Jones of the United States holds the world record of 45.2.

Nicklaus Trips Coe In Amateur

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, a big likeable youngster, won the final hole from the defending champion, Charlie Coe, 1 up Saturday to become the third teen-aged winner of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

Nicklaus, who won't be 20 until next January, is the second youngest player ever to win this coveted title. Bob Gardner won in 1909 at 19 years and five months —just three months younger than Jackie. The other teen-ager was 1902 winner Louis James, 19 years, 1 month.

Nicklaus, dubbed "Snow White" by his Walker Cup teammates, faced a situation which might have shaken a much older and more experienced player. Coe started out with three straight birdies, shot the front nine of the long Broadmoor course in 33 and had a two-under par 69 for the morning round to lead 2 up at the halfway point of the 36-hole match.

But the lanky Oklahoma "sheriff" who packs a putter instead of a pistol showed signs of tiring before the morning round was over. Nicklaus caught him at the third hole of the afternoon round —the 21st of the match. Then he dropped behind again and didn't take the lead until the 32nd hole.

Coe squared the match once more when Nicklaus played the 613-yard 35th hole in miserable fashion. But on the deciding 36th, Coe overshot the green, recovered beautifully only to lose the hole and the match when Nicklaus stroked in a six-foot putt for a birdie three.

Milwaukee Blasts Philadelphia, 9-3

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Old pro Del Crandall's grand slam home run and a homer and a pair of clutch singles by young Lee Maye powered Milwaukee to a 9-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in Connie Mack Stadium Saturday night. The victory kept the Braves in the thick of the ever tightening National League pennant race.

With the second game of Saturday night's day-night Los Angeles-San Francisco doubleheader still to be heard from the Braves were tied with the Dodgers one game out.

Right-hander Bob Buhl took care of the Milwaukee pitching chores, winning his 14th against 9 defeats. Buhl checked the last place Phillies with 10 hits, striking out four and walking only one. Young Don Cardwell (9-10) was the loser.

Milwaukee took the first of a two game series with a pair of runs in the fourth and a big 5 run sixth that kayoed Cardwell and made the cool evening relaxing for the defending champions. Milwaukee added two more in the seventh off reliever Humberto Robinson.

The Phillies scored one in the first on a double by Dave Philley and Wally Post's single. Cardwell, meanwhile, held Milwaukee hitless until Felix Mantilla doubled to start the third. The Phillies' right-hander started to come apart in the fourth in which he made a costly error.

The Braves' big uprising came in the sixth. Hank Aaron beat out an infield single, Adcock doubled and Maye singled home his second run of the game. Bobby Avila walked loading the bases for Crandall's 20th home run of the campaign and his fourth career grand slam.

The rest of the game was superfluous.

Indians Smother Kansas City, 13-7

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jack Harshman pitched Cleveland to a 13-7 victory over Kansas City Saturday night and gave a lift to the Indians' faint American League pennant chances.

The triumph and Chicago's defeat by Detroit Saturday afternoon cut the league leading White Sox margin to 4½ games, with six games remaining on Cleveland's schedule.

Any combination of two Cleveland defeats or Chicago victories will cinch the pennant for the White Sox.

The Indians play the A's and Chicago meets Detroit again Sunday.

Playing out the string with Manager Joe Gordon, who has said he would not return, Cleveland tore into the Athletics for three runs in the fourth inning off starter Johnny Kucks.

They got another off Johnny in the second and exploded for five more in the fourth inning off Tom Sturdivant, highlighted by Minnie Minoso's three-run smash over the left field fence. Harshman helped his own cause in this rally with a two bagger that scored George Strickland. He drove in two other runs one in the fifth and another in the sixth inning.

SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The editor from Cleveland came into Al Lopez' cubicle at Comiskey Park and started talking about Frank Lane, which is what everybody in Cuyahoga County is doing these days.

"At luncheon the other day," he began, "Lane said he thought the trading of Billy Martin away from the Yankees had something to do with Mickey Mantle's bad year. He said Martin had a very good psychological effect on Mantle, not to mention that he took care of his after-hours entertainment, and this had an effect on Mickey's play. He said George Weiss moved Martin out to protect Mantle, but he thought it worked just the other way."

"That's hypothetical," said Senor Lopez, busy managing the White Sox into their first World Series in 40 years, "but I'll tell you this. Not that I wished Martin any hard luck, but I was pleased that he was unavailable once it became clear that the Indians were the outfit we had to beat. He could have made a tremendous difference in the run down the stretch. He's a winning player. No one can take that away from him. He was in five World Series with the Yankees, helped them to four pennants and three world championships.

"You may not have noticed or remembered that he had the Indians rolling when he was knocked out for this year. He was on an 18-game hitting streak and the last hit he made put the Indians in front in Washington."

• • •

IN THE NEXT TIME at bat in a twi-night double-header with the Senators, on Aug. 5, Martin's jaw was broken in two places and his cheekbone fractured by a Truman Clevenger pitch.

Getting back to Martin's influence on Mantle, all Casey Stengel knows is that The Switcher hasn't been quite the same since Billy the Kid was shuffled off to Kansas City "for the good of Mantle and the organization" on June 15, 1957.

Sure Mantle batted .365 that season, but his home-run output fell off by 18 and his runs-batted-in by 36. Last year his batting average dropped to .304 as the Yankees stumbled along after the All-Star Game. He was guilty of fielding and throwing lapses. This season he has contributed generously to the worst Yankee record in 34 years.

• • •

MARTIN COULD WELL HAVE been what the Yankees lacked this season. In a typically frank remark that slipped out on his television program after the Yankees' final game in Cleveland, Phil Rizzuto may have summed it up perfectly.

"Billy," said Little Scooter, who teamed with Martin and knows the lame duck champions as Yogi Berra knows the palm of his catcher's mitt, "what the Yankees needed this season was a player like you."

Informed close observers are inclined to believe that Martin was particularly missed by Mantle.

Billy and Mickey enjoyed a Damon and Pythias relationship on and off the field. The Broadway-type kid from the San Francisco Bay area and the small-town boy from Oklahoma complemented each other. The one super-aggressive, the other shy, they went together like corn pone and fried chicken, bourbon and branch water and Dun and Bradstreet.

• • •

SMART ENOUGH TO HITCH his wagon to a star, Martin kept telling Mantle how good he was, and the deep-cored Strong Boy out of crossroads Commerce responded to be the American League's most valuable player in succeeding years.

Martin, a natural leader, not only played Svengali to Mantle's Trilby, he lit a fire under the Yankees, something they sadly lacked this trip.

Dodgers Take First Contest From Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Shortstop Maury Wills drove in one run and scored two Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco 4 to 1 behind the 6-hit pitching of Roger Craig and moved within one game of the National League leading Giants.

Wills, called up earlier in the season from Spokane, collected three straight singles in the opener of a day-night doubleheader.

Craig opposed the ace southpaw in a last-minute strategy switch by Dodger Manager Walt Alston who decided to use fireball-throwing Don Drysdale in the night game. Drysdale opposes 20-year-old southpaw Mike McCormick as the Dodgers make their big bid to pull even with the Giants.

Fire Chief's Removal Will Be No. 1 Issue At Council Session

Mayor Robert A. DuBois will present a written report to the city council Monday night on his discharge of Fire Chief Howard Reynolds, who refused to resign after two official requests.

Under the law a mayor is required to submit a report of such action within from five to ten days. The mayor announced the veteran fire chief's removal last Tuesday, Sept. 15.

The report to the council is expected to contain the alleged reasons for Reynolds' removal. The mayor had previously stated the resignation was asked because the chief had been "disrespectful and uncooperative." Additional reasons may be included in the official summary of charges.

The course of the controversy after the written report is heard by the council could not be forecast yesterday, although there was wide speculation as to the outcome.

Sensing the sharp divisions of opinion on the question, Mayor DuBois said Saturday he expects to handle the fire chief issue as he would any other item of business.

"This matter can be handled in a dignified, business-like manner, and I expect to see that it is," he declared.

While there has been no announcement or indication that a vote on the fire chief question will be taken, there is feeling in some quarters that a "showdown" will be reached Monday night.

Byron Holkenbrink is Acting Chief of the fire department by appointment of Mayor DuBois. Chief Holkenbrink is a businessman, being a partner in the grocery firm of Holkenbrink & Walton. He has not had previous fire-fighting experience.

When the mayor announced the appointment last week he emphasized that the pressing need "is an administrative one."

The controversy is expected to arrive at a climax when the mayor asks confirmation of a new fire chief.

A majority vote could approve an appointment, while a two-thirds vote of the council would be necessary to block an appointment, it is said.

Mr. Reynolds, a veteran of 30 years with the department—nine years as chief—contends that he is still chief of the department, until a successor is appointed and duly confirmed by council action.

In a statement last week he contended that he has done nothing wrong and does not wish to retire.

Monday night's council session will open at 7:30 o'clock.

The mayor said that matters involving personnel often are discussed in executive session, but that the fire chief issue has received so much publicity that it will be dealt with in open session.

"Anyone interested in the welfare of the city is welcome to attend meetings of the council at any time," Mayor DuBois added.

MacMurray Begins Classes This Week With 800 Enrollment

MacMurray College begins its 114th year this week with the highest enrollment since it was founded, in the days when Abraham Lincoln was listening to Rev. Peter Cartwright preach hereabouts. Cartwright was part of a group representing the Methodist Illinois Conference who started the college in 1846.

Classes begin Thursday for 800 students, who will come to the Jacksonville campus from more than 30 states. Of this total, 350 freshmen will report today for the start of Orientation Week.

Women—225 of them—will move into Main Hall, with about 125 first year men making nearby Harker Hall their headquarters. After they get settled in their rooms, MacMurray faculty and administration will welcome them at simultaneous convocations in Annie Merner Chapel and in Ann Marshall Orr auditorium.

President Louis W. Norris will lead greetings at both places, after which an informal reception will be held on the chapel lawn. Parents are urged to postpone their departure until after the reception.

The first meal for all new students will be served that evening at 6 o'clock in McClelland dining hall, with men's college discussions scheduled for 7:30 in Blackstock recreation room. Corridor parties and vespers for women will be held in Main and Kathryn Lounge.

Faculty Reception Monday

Between Sunday's opening and Thursday's classes, the intervening three days will be devoted to orientation and placement tests, class registration, health conferences, and individual conferences by all students with faculty. A formal faculty reception will be held at 8 o'clock Monday, for all new students, in McClelland dining hall.

The MacMurray faculty had its first formal get-together Friday evening at the traditional faculty dinner. With 17 new teachers added this year, the MacMurray faculty totals 71, an increasing number holding completed doctorates. Departments having new faces are: psychology, mathematics, history and government, physical education, education, modern language, English, chemistry, home economics and economics-business.

Renovated Buildings

Summer activity has resulted in renovation and refurbishing of both Harger and Main Halls. The former got a face-lifting job in preparation for occupancy by freshmen men. Redecoration, under Mrs. Joseph Cleeland's direction, included a new student lounge area.

In Main Hall, the Social Room has been modernized, and a new president's office is now being completed. Other administrative offices also have received retouching.

A new athletic field for men—Sarah Gibson Field—is in process of construction east of the campus, by the CB&Q Railway at the corner of Routt and Johnson streets. Containing a 220-yard straightaway, with a baseball field adjoining, it will be seeded in October, for use in 1960.

First Real Test

The new year will mark the first real test of coordinate education at MacMurray, which is new west of the Appalachians and comparatively rare in the U.S. Although some mixed classes have been held here in the past, this year will mark the first time that this has been done on a large scale.

Students in the third year of MacMurray College for Men will attend classes with women who have been their social—but not academic— companions. Separate classes in freshman and sophomore years—but mixed in junior and senior years—are an integral part of President Louis W. Norris' theory of coordinate education. At MacMurray, it also means separate campus organizations although the two colleges are organized under the same administration, faculty, and board of trustees.

SOMEBODY GOOFED!

Like most of us who plan to attend the annual chicken fry sponsored by the Band Parents, Johnny Johnston was quite perplexed after reading the large, commanding sign. He is checking the sign with his calendar but is still in doubt.

A phone call and a quick check of the date on our tickets confirmed our suspicions — yes, somebody goofed!

The annual chicken fry WILL be held on Tuesday but the correct date is September 22. Slight alterations have been made on both signs on the south side of the high school gym facing College Avenue.

Chairmen Named For Chicken Fry Tuesday

General chairmen for the annual Jacksonville Band Parents Association chicken fry, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Wilson and band director James Welch, announce plans completed for the big event to be held Tuesday evening, Sept. 22, on the lawn of JHS gymnasium, West College avenue and Church street.

Serving of the complete meal, that includes a quarter of a fried chicken and tasty trimmings for one dollar, starts at 5 p.m. and continues until the crowd is served. Double serving lines speed the gigantic task of serving the cafeteria style dinner. The menu includes chicken, potato salad, cole slaw, green beans, carrot sticks, beverage and dessert.

Tickets are being sold by members of the Junior and Senior High School Bands. Tickets may also be obtained on the grounds Tuesday afternoon. Should rain be falling the meal will be served indoors at the school gym.

Benson, On European Trip, To See Harsh Curbs On Agriculture

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will get a first-hand view of agriculture controled by government on his forthcoming trip to Europe.

Being a proponent of policies that would largely free farmers from bureaucratic regulation, the U.S. farm chief undoubtedly will see much that he does not like.

The trip, scheduled to start Wednesday, will take him and his party into Yugoslavia, Poland, the Soviet Union, Finland, Sweden, Norway and West Germany.

The stated purpose is to study agriculture in these countries and to check up on the possibilities of selling more American farm products there. Of course, there is little expectation of reopening agricultural trade with the Russians. Right now they are not in the market for much that this country has, agriculturally speaking.

In East Europe, socialized agriculture has been a goal, but with varying degree of success.

The Soviet Union, of course, has gone a long way toward uprooting private ownership and operation of farms. Most of the land there is under control of state and collective farms. Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Albania have matched the Soviet, but rebellious landowners, coupled with a sharp drop in production, has influenced both Poland and Yugoslavia to suspend efforts to collectivize the land.

Since the war, the Communist regimes have put greater emphasis upon expanding industrial capacity than on increasing farm output. This emphasis has tended to pull many people off the land and to increase food demands of urban areas.

As a consequence, Eastern Europe other than the Soviet Union has tended to become a food deficit area rather than a surplus area.

In most of the satellite countries, the government imposes farm product delivery quotas upon all types of farms. In most, the government also sets prices of products. In most, the major products must be marketed through government agencies. Poland and Yugoslavia permit farmers to make direct sales of some lesser items to consumers.

National Spirit

Government controls are much less severe in the Scandinavian countries. There government action is designed largely to protect farmers against competition from other countries.

MORGAN FARMERS GATHER AT SOYBEAN PLOTS

This shows a portion of the farmers who gathered at the C. D. Ransdell, Jr. soybean test plots last Monday. Approximately 75 persons attended the demonstration to view the nine varieties under test.

Nine varieties of soybeans growing side by side and in different stages of development were on display. John Pendleton, University of Illinois specialist in crops explained the overall picture to those in attendance. Similar tests are being conducted in 45 counties throughout the State. This is the second year for test plots in Morgan county in recent years.

Picture at left shows Morgan County Farm Adviser George Trull and John Pendleton, crop specialist at U. of I., program directors at the annual soybean field day. The field day gives area farmers an opportunity to view the different varieties under actual growing conditions in Morgan county. Final results and yields will be determined after each variety has been harvested. Full test results will be published later.

PRICES OF BEEF CATTLE MAY BE LOWER NEXT YEAR

Prices of slaughter cattle seem likely to average $1 to $2 lower in 1960 than they have averaged in 1959. Only one important factor points to higher levels, while two point to lower ones.

Increasing consumer income may tend to lift prices of beef and of cattle. However, consumer incomes will not increase so much from 1959 to 1960 as they did from 1958 to 1959. We have already pulled out of the recession. Now we can expect only normal growth in the year ahead. That will not be enough to provide much new strength for the cattle market.

The major item pointing to lower cattle prices next year is a probable increase in market receipts. Farmers and ranchers have been holding back cattle and calves for 24 months. By the end of this year, the number of steers will have increased 20 per cent in two years, while the number of beef heifers will have increased 25 to 30 per cent. Almost all of the steers and many of the heifers will be slaughtered next year.

The number of beef calves will be up about 18 per cent, and a substantial number will be slaughtered before the end of 1960.

Cow slaughter is unusually small this year and could easily increase substantially next year.

Another thing that may lead to lower prices for beef cattle next year is increasing competition from the other major meats — pork and poultry.

The 1959 spring pig crop was 12 per cent larger than that of last year, and some of it will be available for consumption this winter. Farmers have reported intentions to produce 10 per cent more fall pigs this year than they did in 1958. The actual increase may be less than 10 per cent, but it will probably be at least 6 per cent, assuring that much more pork for the late winter, spring and early summer.

We believe there will also be another increase in spring farrowing in 1960. That would guarantee a larger supply of pork for the late summer and the fall months also.

The supply of broilers, too, is likely to increase again next year. It is a strong uptrend. The recent cutback in production is probably only temporary.

Another point in the beef cattle outlook is that feed may cost just as much as it has in the past 12 months. To be sure there is more corn, but this larger supply is offset by the smaller oat crop and the higher support price for corn.

The supply of soybean meal will be no larger than it was last year, since the soybean crop is smaller.

These facts are probably in many farmers' minds and may explain why actual sales of stockers and feeders have been slow this summer.

Method To Determine 1960 Wheat History Changed By New Law

Chairman Wilbur C. Williams of the Morgan County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced a change in the method of determining wheat history acreage for wheat farms on which the allotment is underseeded. The change is the result of a law which has just gone into effect and which is designed to help farmers who underplant protect their future wheat allotments.

Under the new law, a farmer who plants no wheat for 1960 harvest may still obtain maximum history acreage credit for 1960 if his actual planted acreage of wheat in either 1958 or 1959 — plus any acreage diverted from wheat under the Soil Bank Program — was equal to 75 percent of his farm wheat allotment.

If a farmer does not meet this requirement and wants to get maximum wheat history credit for 1960, then he must meet the 75 percent planting requirement for 1960. In other words, by planting 75 percent of his wheat allotment in any of the three years 1958, 1959, or 1960, the farmer assures himself of full history credit for 1960.

In addition, a farmer who is prevented from seeding wheat for the 1960 crop because of unfavorable weather can preserve his maximum 1960 wheat history acreage credit if he notifies the county committee by December 1, 1959 (June 1, 1960 in spring wheat areas) and the committee makes an official determination of this fact.

There has been no change in the law or regulations relating to history credit for farmers who overproduce their 1960 allotments, Mr. Williams said. The farmer who exceeds his allotment will receive history credit only for the allotment unless he stores his excess wheat or delivers it to the Secretary of Agriculture to avoid or postpone the marketing quota penalty.

Wheat Acreage History

With winter wheat planting beginning, Congress and the President have acted in the nick of time to change the law and make it easier for a farmer who cuts down on wheat production to protect his farm wheat history.

Wheat history, or past acreage of wheat on the farm, is one of the main factors in determining a farm's acreage allotment. When the ASC folks say that a farmer gets his maximum wheat acreage history, they mean that he is getting credit both for the wheat he planted and the acreage he diverted from wheat as a contribution to surplus adjustment. That means he can cut down on wheat production without reducing his allotment in the future.

Until this new law took effect Aug. 18, it was necessary for a farmer to plant his full wheat allotment in 1960 in order to receive maximum history credit for the year. Under the new law, any farmer who has planted 75 percent of his wheat allotment in any of the thre years 1958, 1959, or 1960 is entitled to full history credit for 1960. In figuring his planting, acreage diverted from wheat under the Soil Bank Program is counted as though it had been planted.

So, if a farmer met the 75 percent requirement in 1958 or 1959, he may plant no wheat in 1960 and still get credit for his full wheat history this year. Or, even though he planted no wheat the last two years, he may plant 75 percent of his 1960 allotment and thus protect his history in the establishment of future allotments.

Mr. Williams urges farmers who have any questions about these provisions to consult the county office in the short time that remains before winter wheat planting.

Pupils To Design Posters On Good Eating Habits

The Morgan County Farm Bureau is again inviting grade and high school students in public and parochial schools of the county to enter posters showing better eating habits and their importance to health.

The Farm Bureau will give prizes for the best two posters entered by each of the three age groups. The best poster will be entered in the District V contest and this winner will win an all-expense trip to Chicago next November.

"While children have fun digging up information about foods that make up the diet for each day's meals, they should also learn good eating habits that will last long after the contest is over," says John Chambers, organization director. "Judging by surveys of eating habits, both young and old have seriously deficient diets in many cases."

Information concerning the contest may be had at the schools or at the Farm Bureau office. Deadline for entry is Oct. 19.

Glad To Learn Hog Production Slowing

By OVID A. MARTIN

Covering 10 major Midwestern producing states, the Agriculture Department survey forecast a 1959 fall pig crop only 5 per cent larger than the 1958 fall crop instead of a 7 per cent increase indicated in June.

But more important than this was a forecast that pig production for the 1960 spring crop might ease off a little from this year's spring crop.

Such a reversal in the production trend could be expected, officials said, to bring a high level of stability to hog prices in 1960. There had been concern over a possible collapse, especially if the uptrend in production continued unabated.

There remained a possibility that the forecast of the small decline might induce more confidence in 1960 hog markets than had been held heretofore with many farmers changing plans to increase rather than decrease production.

The prospective halt in the two-year hog expansion cycle was good news to the Eisenhower administration and the Republican party. A further decline in hog prices from this year's decrease of about a third would raise vote getting problems for Republican candidates in livestock states.

Total expenditures were estimated at an annual rate of $25,800,000,000 during the second quarter of this year compared with $25,200,000,000 during the like quarter last year.

SCRAPBOOK CONTEST TO CLOSE MONDAY

Monday will be the last day for Morgan County 4-H clubs to enter the annual scrapbook contest, announces Bob Hayward, Jr., youth adviser.

The winning scrapbook will be announced during the Achievement Day program to be held at the Times theatre on Saturday, Nov. 7, and the club entering it will receive a small U. S.-4-H flag set.

The judges will be Charles Williamson, Mrs. Robert Houston and John Chambers, editor of the Morgan County Farmer.

All animals are susceptible to the poisonous effect of snakeroot. Cattle in particular are likely to be poisoned, since they eat this weed more readily than other farm animals do.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

(A roundup of the week's work, activities and observations at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station near Robbs in southern Illinois, prepared by H. A. Cate.)

Whatever else may be claimed for pelleted feeds for calves, we'll have to concede that the calves like the pellets. Last winter beef calves weighing about 465 pounds at the beginning and 750 pounds at the end of a 165-day period were eating the all-hay pellet at the rate of 20 pounds a day. This was well above 3 per cent of their body weight in pellets consumed each day!

Gains Acceptable

Eating this much hay, the calves gained 1? pounds daily. We would have been disappointed if they had not gained well. However, this was growth gain and not fattening or finishing gain. On the market these calves dressed about 51 per cent and graded only low standard. They were nothing more than they had been when they started out—good to choice feeder cattle but with more weight on them. At this stage they were just right to carry along on a fattening ration consisting of at least 60 per cent concentrate.

Calves On Other Rations

Rations other than the all-hay pellet were 15 per cent concentrate and 85 percent hay, 30 per cent concentrate and 70 per cent hay, 60 per cent concentrate and 40 per cent hay, 80 per cent concentrate and 20 per cent hay—all pelleted and self-fed. All of the rations up to the 60 per cent concentrate ration were growing rather than fattening rations. The last two rations, the 60 per cent concentrate and the 80 per cent concentrate rations, did finish the calves to good slaughter grades. There was no real difference between the 40 per cent concentrate ration and the 60 per cent concentrate ration in rate of gain, cost of gain and value of the animal on the market. This was true not only on the calf lots, but also on yearlings and two-year-olds.

Rib-Eye Measurements

Experimental cattle from the Station have for many years been closely checked for carcass information. But in the past two or three years the rib-eye area, the red meat area of the rib section, of each carcass has been traced on plastic and later measured. The red meat in the rib-eye is a good indication of the amount of lean meat in the entire carcass. Of course, a large rib-eye is desirable and is reported as square inches of rib-eye. Our reason for making these measurements is to determine whether or not lean meat characteristics are highly inherited. Also, we would like to know whether or not different rations will affect the amount of lean meat.

We found that in young cattle the rib-eye area is rather closely related to growth or gain. Calves gaining 20 per cent more on one ration than on another increased the rib-eye measurement by about 15 per cent.

Extend Deadline In Soil Bank Reserve Plan

Farmers who are interested in the conservation reserve of the soil bank for 1960 now have additional time to take the first step in applying for the program, Chairman Wilbur C. Williams of the Morgan County ASC committee announced Friday. He said the deadline to request a basic annual rate per acre has been extended to Sept. 30.

The principal reason for the extension, he said, is to allow the Department of Agriculture time for a re-study of the method being used in establishing the rental value of land offered for the program. Also, there is new legislation pending on this subject.

The agricultural appropriations act for 1960 contains the following provision: "In establishing annual rental rates for new contracts, no such rental rate shall be established in excess of the local fair rental value of the acreage offered, such fair rental value to be based upon the average annual crop production harvested from such acreage during the past five crop years." Many problems have been encountered in applying this provision, particularly in areas where drought and other natural disasters have unusually affected crop yields during one or more of the past five years.

Farmers who have already filed applications for basic rates need take no further action at this time, Williams said. Their applications will be held and will be acted upon after new instructions are received. Applications for contract, the second step in the 1960 conservation reserve procedure, will not be accepted until further notice.

Berea Ag Club Elects Officers

The Berea Ag club met Sept. 15 at the Yatesville Community Center. All old members were present and six new members attended the meeting.

A wiener roast and hayride is planned for Oct. 4 for all members and families as a welcome to the new members.

Richard Norfleet, assistant leader, gave a talk on officer's responsibilities and the new officers were elected. They are Alan Petefish, president; Bob Reiser, vice president; Mike Anderson, secretary and treasurer; Wayne Bloomfield, reporter; and Connie Anderson, recreation chairman.

The new officers will meet Sept. 30 to plan the calender for the new year. Refreshments were served by leader Ward Petefish.

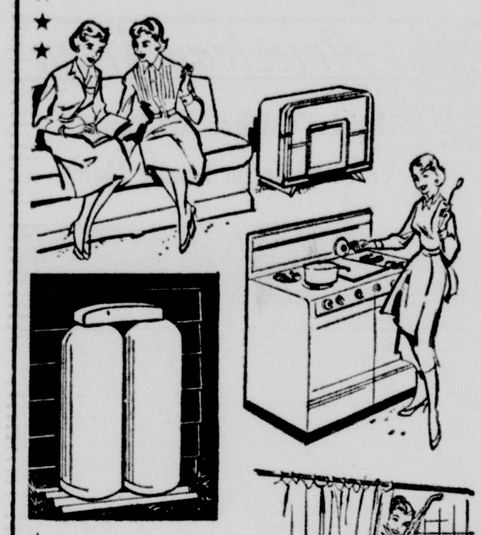

Farmers and their purchasing and marketing cooperatives borrowed a record $3.9 billion from their cooperative farm credit system in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1959.

Wheat Exemption For Marketing Quota Announced

Wilbur C. Williams, Chairman of the Morgan County ASC Committee reminded Morgan County farmers of the feed wheat exemption provision of the 1960 wheat marketing quota regulations recently. Legislation enacted some time ago permits farmers to grow up to 30 acres of wheat without penalty provided all of it is used for feed, seed or human consumption on the farm where it is produced. None of the wheat can be sold, bartered, or exchanged. Any livestock or poultry fed must be owned by the producer and it will not be permissable to remove any wheat to another farm for any purpose.

Any producer interested in growing up to 30 acres of wheat for 1960 should file an application prior to seeding time. Applications are available in the county ASC office at 308 East State Street, Jacksonville, Mr. Williams said. Producers participating in the program will be required to file future reports on the use of the wheat so grown. An application may be cancelled by the producer at any time, but in this event marketing quota program provisions will then apply to any wheat produced on the farm.

Pork's Plentiful This Fall—

Since President Eisenhower took office he has vetoed more than 140 bills passed by Congress. Dozens of times the lawmakers tried to override, but always they failed.

Not long ago, he slapped them down on their pet measure—the rivers, harbors and reclamation appropriation bill. That's the one the legislators rely on to keep them in good favor at home.

This had happened before, and the lawmakers were angry. They passed the bill again, without deleting the 67 items the President objected to. In less than half an hour after receiving the measure, Mr. Eisenhower sent it back to Capitol Hill with another veto message.

But there the game of "shuttle the pork barrel" ended. Rising in fresh wrath, both House and Senate voted by comfortable margins to override the President's veto and enact into law their cherished personal projects.

Thus it will be recorded in history that Congress first broke Mr. Eisenhower's veto spell with a massive assertion of support for the well-weathered principle of "let me get mine."

Remember their great triumph the next time you hear them talking of "economy in government."

Is Freedom So Shaky?

It's too late for full action by the Congress this session, but we can be encouraged by the fact that a Senate subcommittee has approved a constitutional amendment that would repeal the two-term limit on the U.S. presidency.

The essence of democracy is freedom of choice. So long as American voters have the right to go to the polls to choose their leaders, they will not be in serious danger of subjection by a dictator. The two-term curb is allegedly designed to block the prospect.

Given access to the polls, the voters can always take care of anybody who thinks he might rule the roost indefinitely.

On the other hand, they also can, if they wish, continue in office a leader of high qualification whom they may deem uniquely fitted for the problems and the times they see ahead.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev is putting on one of the great shows of the 20th century. But how it looks depends on whether you're sitting in the United States or elsewhere.

Here he is, an ordinary-looking man, not too well educated, a one-time miner who struggled up the ladder from the coal pits to become the boss of one of the most powerful nations in history.

More than that. Despite this country's long hostility to communism and the billions it has poured into defense against the Soviets, the top man in world communism has been invited over.

No matter how distasteful he and all he stands for may be to millions in this country, he practically compelled the United States to invite him in the hope that this may be the way to find a peaceful solution to the Berlin dilemma.

Thus is is not hard for Premier Khrushchev to see in himself a symbol of all the backward people and nations who dream of rising out of poverty and ignorance to a place of equality with, or even superiority to, the best on earth.

Whether Americans like it or not the invitation to Khrushchev—meaning the blackjack, Berlin circumstances which brought him here—is frank recognition that the Soviet Union, long despised by some as primitive, is equal to us in power.

His whole performance has been like that of a man who knows he has the Western world puzzled and guessing.

He speaks of himself as the harbinger of peace (but warns of the horror of war if there is no peace); he says the ice of the cold war has begun to crack since his arrival (but he hasn't so far yielded an inch on anything); he remains jolly, the traditional mark of a man of good will (except for sudden flashes of anger at affronts); he bounces around with the enthusiasm of a long-delayed tourist (as well he might, since he's the first head of a Soviet government to come here); and he gives the impression of a man who is going to enjoy himself, whether or not anything comes of his trip at all.

The image of himself which he has been anxious to project to the American people—and to all others, since his words and pictures are being sent everywhere—is that of a man of good will.

But he has also been projecting another picture of himself, which the Americans can like or leave, but which most probably looks good to the whole Communist world and perhaps even to the neutral and backward people too.

He's been friendly, but tough without being unpleasant about it. He's not letting anyone get the notion he's being beguiled or softened by the attention given him as the representative of world communism.

At a Waldorf luncheon Thursday, he put himself in focus: "Who am I, then? Is it that I am a man who when I appear before Communists, I applaud Communists, when I am among American capitalists I applaud them? People might think this is no politician, this is a weather vane."

He has made it clear to people everywhere that he is calmly sure of himself and the ultimate triumph of world communism. For instance: At the National Press Club this week, with the whole nation watching him on TV, Khrushchev very jovially informed the United States in its own capital that communism would in the end drown and bury capitalism.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Great Precepts of the Bible

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The Bible is a book, or a collection of books, that no one characterization or description can define. Its greatness is in its wholeness, and the diversity of its spiritual depths and presentations.

But from this great whole, and from its various parts, stand out proverbs, definitions, and precepts that make clear and strong the realities of life and religion.

Some of these passages have been clearly emphasized. There is the definition of religion in Micah 6:8: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" The New Testament's counterpart of this is James' practical definition: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

A passage in Zechariah 7:9-10 defines the essence of religion in action: "Execute righteous judgment, and show mercy and compassion every man to his brother; and oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart."

Perhaps those words have not stood out so strongly because they were accampanied by a prophecy of denunciation, because of the failure to obey them.

But what a world this would be, if from the ancient time of Zechariah until now, men had lived according to them. "Just judgment," "mercy" and "compassion" — what a combination!

The extent and the manifestations of anti-Semitism on the part of certain professing Christians, and in so-called Christian communities have added aspects of tragedy to the material attacks, when one considers how much the moral and spiritual world owes to the Jews.

It is a satisfaction to see by a Christian writer, in a Christian newspaper, one expression of recognition and gratitude. The fact is that in the history of the Jews, there are emphasized the most profound teachings concerning the power of faith.

Dr. Bernard Ramm, director of graduate studies in religion at Baylor University, recently wrote in "Christianity Today": "If any nation should have perished (spiritually, politically, or physically) it should have been Israel. Yet Israel survived through centuries and through impossible conditions. The reason she survived is that the eternal God was her stay and her support."

I think it might be added that there was always faith in the eternal God. No matter how many failed, with the exile of one kingdom, and the wiping out of another, there was always a righteous, saving remnant.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sing a heigh nonny nonny and away we go with the new television season.

In the bistros of Hollywood, the networks, sponsors and agencies are throwing night and daytime parties for the press to herald each new show on TV.

What effect all this partying has is a moot question. In at least one instance, it produced collapse. During a similar season's opening, a local columnist tried to accept every party invitation in one week. He was hospitalized after 16.

Already these are grumblings that the new look is not as new as it looks. Despite the largest program turnover in TV's history, reviewers have carped that new shows merely copy old, successful ones. Reviewers can be difficult, sometimes.

But what of the series of yesteryear? Is there no one to raise a gimlet to the memory of Sheena, Queen of the Jungle? Or the Mickey Mouse Club? Or My Little Margie? No, they die without a wake.

Why do series die? Rating anemia is the usual cause. But I heard a new reason this week from Bob Cummings.

"We might have gone on for a sixth year," he said. "But the Treasury Department came up with a new ruling called the amortization law. We were supposed to estimate how much we would receive when the films went into syndication and pay ahead of time! That meant my wife Mary and I would have had to give the government two million dollars in order to keep making the series."

But don't feel too sorry for Robert. He sold the films to ABC for a hefty amount. And he won't be idle either. He has his pick of dozens of specials on TV this season. It's nice to know that old series stars never die, they just go on to specials.

Manners Make Friends

When a man is out dinner-dancing he should not ask another woman to dance if it means leaving his partner alone at the table. Also, when he is the only man at the table, he should stay and talk to the women until another man comes back to the group.

BEGAN CUSTOM

St. Francis of Assisi, in Italy, in the 13th century, gathered his friars around him in the humanization of the story of the Gospel and composed songs about the birth of Christ. These were sung around a creche, or tableau, showing the surroundings of the manger. Thus began the custom perpetuated in churches today.

Even if Vacation Was Bad You Just Don't Admit It

Mrs. C. was telling what a simply perfect vacation the family had just returned from when Mr. C. let fall a few remarks that showed it wasn't quite as perfect as Mrs. C. said.

Mrs. C. was obviously furious to have such carping comments and she had a right to be. Mr. C. just wasn't playing the game.

For months, Mrs. C., like all her friends, had been making vacation talk. Each had been assuring the others that their particular plans for the year sounded "divine," while trying to make their own sound even more so.

Then the vacations started rolling around—and the vacationers began to return home. Each one reported an "absolutely perfect" vacation—and built it up with tales of wonderful restaurants, important persons met, unbelievable scenery, perfect weather and so on.

Skipped completely were all flaws and disappointments—such as tired bones, stifling heat, rainy weather, mosquitos, car trouble, etc.

But being a mere man, Mr. C. obviously didn't know all the beforehand vacation talk between his wife and her friends, or know the contents of the glowing postcard messages sent back from every impressive spot, or even surmise that women always report "absolutely perfect" vacations to each other.

So Mr. C. mentioned quite a few unmentionables—like poor accommodations, car trouble, poor fishing. And he even had the nerve to say he was mighty glad to drive into his own driveway and have vacation over with for another year.

No wonder Mrs. C. was put out. Who ever heard of admitting that a vacation wasn't perfect? Who but a man, that is.

Congress Made More Noise Than Music This Session

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Democratic praise and Republican criticism of the record made by the 86th Congress, First Session, will probably be drowned out by the hullabaloo over arrival of Nikita Khrushchev and party of 100.

There has been plenty of sound and fury in congressional debate all year, however. The congressmen have worked hard and long hours. But by any standards the accomplishments are disappointing. President Eisenhower certainly didn't get what he wanted. And Democratic majorities in Congress didn't get what they started out for, either.

The Congress got off to a slow start with no new legislation completed in January and only one bill signed into law in February. In March it was six; April, nine; May, 14; June, 38; July, 53; August, 83.

But even with an end-of-season break in the log-jam that has held back key bills all year, the 1957 record of the 85th Congress, First Session, when 316 public laws were enacted, is not apt to be surpassed. The fate of many last-minute bills won't be known until 10 days after Congress goes home, pending presidential signature or pocket veto.

What stands out in the 86th Congress record is that only a dozen really important measures passed. The new Labor Reform Act of 1959 is probably most important.

Other major accomplishments include: the life insurance income tax act, Tennessee Valley Authority bond financing act, Veterans Pension act, increase of national debt limit and increase of railroad retirement benefits.

In the field of foreign affairs, two most important actions were increase of U.S. subscription to World Bank and International Monetary Fund, creation of the Inter-American Development Bank. Passage of the Captive Nations Week resolution turned out to be more world-shaking than its sponsors thought, when Khrushchev made it an issue during Vice President Nixon's visit to Russia.

Several of the more significant congressional actions this year were renewals of expiring legislation: The draft act, renegotiation act for defense contracts, extension of wartime corporation and excise tax rates.

Final figures on the congressional economy record must await Budget Bureau's addition of all appropriations. Its bookkeeping differs from congressional accounting methods. But by congressional figures, the President's 77-billion-dollar budget of last January will be cut by about a billion to a billion and a half.

Whether his will be a balanced budget will depend a good bit on tax collections up to June 30, 1960.

The Democratic-controlled Congress record on economizing is curious. It started out criticizing the administration for not wanting to spend enough. In a few fields Congress did appropriate more. But in total—aided by a few well-placed presidential vetoes—Congress cut back expenditures on nearly every money bill passed.

Over 100 other routine, government housekeeping acts also took up much time. They covered such things as public lands and national park transfers, minor administrative changes in the armed services and Veterans Administration law and District of Columbia government.

Many of these measures seem funny when listed, but they are of tremendous importance to people concerned. They dealt with such things as incorporating the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, assisting the Boy Scouts with their national and world jamborees, renaming rivers and dams, regulating fire sales, dispensing of paregoric and licensing dentists in the city of Washington.

Among the casualties of his session, left over for possible action next year are: farm legislation, election reform, increased postage rates to meet mail service costs, aid to education, aid to depressed areas, and 13,000 other bills introduced, but not acted upon.

Homes Bought in 1900s Have Proven Valuable Investment

BY MARIE DAERR

If you are an older person who has owned his home for many years, here is a bright ray in the midst of the high cost of living gloom.

Take the word of a Cornell University professor, homes bought 50 years ago and still held by their original owners have appreciated 380 per cent in value. That old family homestead bought for $2,000 back in 1900 to 1909 is worth $9,000 today.

"People who bought houses in the 1930s have seen their investment more than double," said Prof. Glenn H. Beyer, director of Cornell's Housing Research Center. "People who bought in the past decade already have seen the dollar value of their homes increase by 29 per cent."

Professor Beyer presented his statistics at the University of Michigan Conference on Aging. They are based on early results of four surveys which the center conducted in a 15-county upstate New York region, including metropolitan Rochester, and also metropolitan St. Louis, Mo., Cook County, Ill., and Los Angeles County, Calif.

Professor Beyer said the survey compared only the original cost with the current value of homes and did not include amounts spent in maintenance, improvements and repairs.

Preliminary findings in the survey show that older home owners have houses with a median value of $12,000, ranging from $9,000 in St. Louis to $17,000 in Cook County.

Most frequent improvements in recent years have been to the heating system. Roofing came second. Interior and exterior painting and kitchen and bathroom remodeling followed.

Mitnick has built 1,400 homes in North Cape Bay, N.Y. Of these, 800 are occupied by retired couples.

Mitnick believes that older people are much happier living in their own homes, close to family and friends. In general, they don't want to be uprooted from their home areas. They want to live in familiar surroundings.

Q—I am an older man who would like to increase his income. I have a beautiful garden which is filled with flowers from early spring to late fall. Do you think I could work up a little flower selling business, with people in apartments as my customers?—J.T.

A—Sounds like a fine idea. I know a woman in her 70s who does just this, selling hundreds of bouquets from daffodil to chrysanthemum time. Why don't you pass out some sample bouquets to launch your enterprise?

The term mausoleum, meaning any elaborately decorated tomb, comes from the name of King Mausolus, who lived in Halicarnassus, in what is now Turkey. At his death in 353 B.C., his devoted queen, Artemisia, ordered the erection of the finest tomb her vast wealth could afford. The final cost was tremendous and the tomb became one of the Seven Wonders of the ancient world.

Happier Children Are Bonus Value of Better Family Meals

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Family life in America certainly revolves around our schools and communities. They offer a challenge in nutrition education to everyone who believes better meals build better families, according to Dr. Fredrick J. Stare, Department of Nutrition, Harvard University.

The State of Maine, like most other states, hopes to build better families through better food. Dorothy Woodcock, nutrition consultant to the Department of Health and Welfare, stressed the importance of teaching teen-agers habits that will assure them strong adult bodies. Her department emphasizes these points:

1. Many foods satisfy hunger but do not build strong muscles, teeth and bones, provide pep and energy, and promote good posture and better looks.

2. Eating three meals a day that include all of the important foods is the first rule to follow. Second helpings and even thirds are allowed when you are hungary.

3. Soft drinks and candy are not body building foods. They may be the cause of poor teeth, blotchy skin or poor appetite; are often the real cause of overweight. Don't make them a regular item in your diet.

Gertrude Grimey, director of the school lunch program and Avis Hughey, chairman of Maine Nutrition Committee, said that by interesting children in the effects of good food on their looks, grades and athletic ability, family diets were improving because the children urged their mothers to plan and cook better meals—the kind the school lunch offers and they have learned to enjoy.

After a few months of five hot lunches a week, more of the boys and girls made the school honor roll. That achievement sparked their interest in better meals, Miss Grimey reported.

"One little fellow rebelled at eating a hot lunch, was finally persuaded to try it. Gradually he came to like the balanced meals. One day he told me, thumping his chest like Tarzan, 'Look at me now—I'm as strong as a tiger.' We know from investigation that this young convert to better eating was instrumental in getting his mother to learn more about meal planning and to accept with enthusiasm the doctrine that better meals make better families," she added.

Not malnutrition but subnutrition exists in many homes. Ignorance more than lack of money is the major cause, according to Dr. Kathryn E. Briwa, nutritionist, University of Maine. That is why the schools, in behalf of a healthier and happier state, must regard nutrition education as important as the three R's," she explained. Dr. Briwa said many school children are left to their own devices as far as their food is concerned.

"Under pressure of modern living, and often where both parents work outside the home, many mothers find it easier to give the youngsters money for lunches and snacks instead of serving them down-to earth meals at home," she reported.

So the schools are faced with a problem that isn't in the text books. We have to educate them in the enjoyment of foods they need to grow on. The school lunch program is the practical classroom for this vital part of American education," she added.

We talked also with Mrs. Richard E. Reed of Augusta, mother of three young children and wife of the director of the Maine Sardine Council. She is noted for participation in community activities.

We often give group picnics, taking neighborhood children or gdoups from school. The rule is fun, relaxation and a good meal in the open," she said, adding, "the children love it and are, therefore, willing to listen to a little horse sense about the foods they should eat to stay well and happy. So we plan picnic meals that include the basic foods from the four groups—milk, meat (poultry, fish eggs) vegetables, fruits, bread and cereals."

"Before we drive them home, we stick the United States Department of Agriculture's colorful folder, 'Food for Fitness' in their pockets and hint they might ask their mothers to explain it to them. Tricky but practical," she said laughing.

She gave us one of her typical picnic menus—sandwiches: sardine, onion and egg; peanut butter; boiled ham. Whole tomatoes, whole raw carrots, celery, plums and bananas. Hot chocolate and hot corn chowder in thermos bottles. Nut cookies and individual paper cups of ice cream.

Progressive Unit Elects Officers At Meredosia

MEREDOSIA — The Progessive Unit of Home Bureau met Wednesday afternoon at the home of its chairman, Mrs. Oscar Nortrup. These were elected officers for the next year: chairman, Mrs. Oscar Nortrup; vice chairman, Mrs. Alvin Unland; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Marvin Schlieker.

The members sang "The Last Rose of Summer" and "America the Beautiful." Mrs. Charles Wegehoft displayed pictures showing the beauties of America.

Mrs. Wegehoft presented the major lesson, "The Sleeping Area," with pictures of room arrangements, samples of materials and ideas for remodeling. Mrs. Marvin Schlieker's selected subject, "Winter Bouquets," was illustrated with several bouquets which she had made. She told about drying flowers and weeds to preserve their natural appearance.

Roll call was answered one hundred per cent by the ten members by telling "my principal achievement during summer vacation." Several committee reports were given. A special collection was taken—"Pennies for Friendship."

The next meeting will be on October 30—a change of date — at the home of Mrs. Aldo Hierman. Miss Hazel Graves, the county home adviser, will be present.

WADC Radiation Studies

To find out more about the radiations in space, the office of the Wright Air Development Center has let two contracts for the development of miniaturized (made small) instruments to measure neutrons and gamma rays and to measure alpha and beta particles.

All four of these radiations come from the nuclei of atoms. Every atom is made of a nucleus with one or more electrons orbiting it.

The nuclei are always quite a bit heavier than their planetary electrons. Nuclei some times get smashed by stray radiation, or fall apart if they are too heavy, like Uranium atoms.

Neutrons are chunks of nuclei about the size of a Hydrogen nucleus. Hydrogen is the lightest of all elements so scientists have given it a mass number of 1.

Since Neutrons are the same size as Hydrogen nuclei (Hydrogen's one electron doesn't count) they also have a mass number of 1.

Gamma Rays are a type (quantum) of electromagnetic radiation like light except they have a much shorter wave length. This gives them a much greater penetrating power than light, in fact, the only things that will stop Gamma Rays are lead and Hydrogen.

Alpha particles are positively charged chunks of nuclei and are exactly like a Helium atom minus its electrons. Alpha particles are made of two protons (hydrogen nuclei) and two Neutrons. This gives them a mass number of about 4.

Want Small Counter

The WADC radiation studies office wants the instrument for measuring Alpha and Beta particles to be no larger than a small portable record player. This will be quite a bit smaller than the Alpha and Beta particle counters now being used which weigh from 500 to 600 pounds and take up about 50 cubic feet of space. Light neutron counters are also being worked on.

These instruments could be put in the pay-load of a Thor-Able missile and sent into orbit or on a long flight into space. These instruments could then tell the WADC men the information they need to make protective arrangements so that man can survive in space.

Food In Space

The WADC scientists are also studying the effects of radiation on food. They are doing this to determine if a man's diet must be added to while he's in a radiation field, and if some few foods, if given in larger amounts, will offer protection from radiation.

The Wright Air Development Center has also set up an isotope laboratory, recently, and it is getting significant results on the effects of radiation in the body. Isotopes are atoms which are just like others except that they are too heavy or are radio active.

The WADC lab uses radioactive isotopes on rats because they are enough like men that their reactions to radiation are practically the same as man's would be. Also rats are much cheaper than monkeys.

SYCAMORE
By Rip Barnsdall

The sycamore, along with the tulip tree, is the biggest tree in the woods. The leaves look something like maple leaves, but are somewhat larger.

The fruit of the tree is a round ball, about one inch in diameter. They are called "button balls," and the sycamore has often been called the buttonwood tree because of the fruit.

STILTS
By Emma Mae Leonhard

For the first time in the last several years, a mud flat has appeared at Lake Mauvaisterre. Now again birders in this area are having the fun of watching the sandpipers as they totter and tilt on the mud bank, walking and running, now and then chasing one another, pushing or pumping or probing their conspicuous bills in the shallow water in search of something to eat.

Their colors are like the mud and the sand or sticks and stones — usually dull and indefinite. They vary greatly in size, shape, and color. Yet they all may look alike to many people. Even then most people enjoy their antics even if they may not have the patience to identify the different species.

However, among the sandpipers some few may stand out as distinct individuals with long legs. Two of these are the Yellowlegs, the Greater and the Lesser, standing and acting like sentinels over the assemblies of the other shorter sandpipers. Their bright yellow legs are a distinguishing mark and make it comparatively easy for us to locate this fairly common species.

It is wise, however, to look carefully at these tallish birds among the smaller sandpipers. They could possibly be the rarer Stilt Sandpiper, not so easy to identify in the fall. If they are gray above and white below, have a conspicuous white stripe over the eye, and particularly if their legs are greenish, not yellow, they will be the Stilt.

Rare Sight

On September 5, we saw four beautiful Stilt Sandpipers on this flat at Lake Mauvaisterre. They were feeding so near the shore that we could watch them without binoculars feeding with their perpendicular chopping motion of the head and bill.

At first we thought that there were only three. Then farther out in the water was another Stilt, wading up to its belly and submerging its head, as Stilts often do.

There is many a birder who may have over two hundred birds on his life list but cannot boast of having seen a Stilt Sandpiper. There is many an ornithologist who has had the same experience. Jacksonville birding area again produced.

Having Fun On Bicycle Jaunts

By Joseph A. Smith

Get several boys interested in a riding group, then let's prepare ourselves for our outings.

Before you start be sure to adjust the height of your bike seat for comfortable riding. With your leg fully extended, allow the knee to be slightly bent.

Re-check your bicycle; tighten all nuts and bolts, check the spokes, oil all moving parts. Check and tighten chain if need be (wash and lubricate with chain graphite), and check tires for proper pressure.

Ride Single File

Now as we go on the road we ride single-file with the traffic. Fooling around is inviting death.

On highways ride either on the shoulder or within six inches of the edge of the road so that you can get off the road quickly if need be. This CAN be important! Our red reflectors on the rear fender are clean, and our lights working.

If traveling over night, a small tarpaulin can be carried along and pitched to a fence for shelter. Take along a small first aid kit, a wrench or two, a chain master link, a valve core, etc. If the trip is to be a large one a spare inner tube, a cold tire patch kit, and a small hand tire pump are good investment.

Pack Saddle Bags

In your saddle bags along with the necessary supplies, one should take a change of clothes and a fold-up type rain cape.

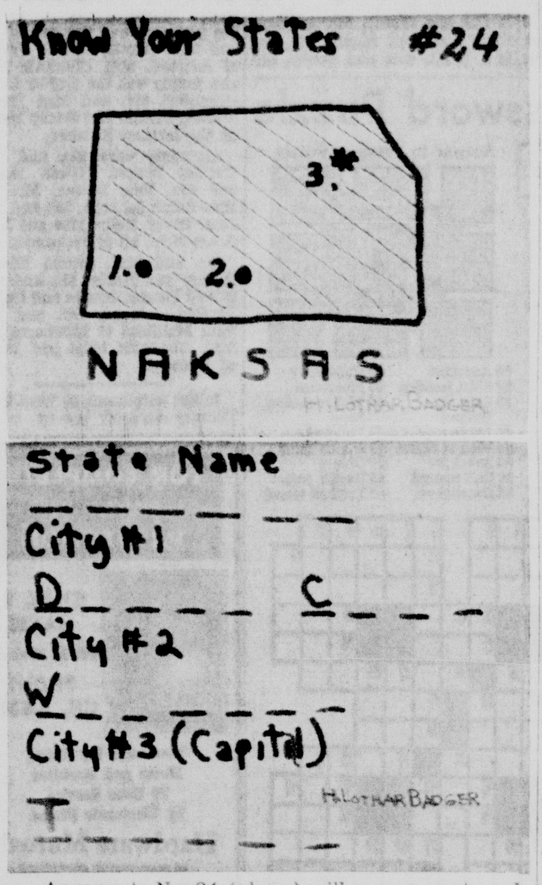

Know your road and route; don't forget your map and Compass! Be sure you have some identification paper on your person.

Ride with as little effort as possible, change position frequently, and rest five or ten minutes out of every hour on the road.

Good luck and many a fine trip may you have!

Brave Little Rebel

By Loella Sloane Young

Chap. 25: Trail's End

Emmy Lou silently slipped down from her chair and climbed into her father's lap, completely disregarding his neatly pressed uniform. Fondly, she rested her golden head against his broad shoulder, as he gently stroked the curling ringlets.

"About 2 o'clock," he continued, "the company traveling southeast, met up with the unsuspecting Indians and their prisoners.

"They were so surprised and frightened to see so many soldiers were on their trail, they gathered together and hit out across the prairie toward a ridge of low mountains, where we have been suspecting they hide out."

"My Major and his men took chase, and have orders not to return to the post without every single one of them dead or prisoner. We'll make an example of these renegades, and frighten any others who might be thinking they could get away with such tricks."

"And when the Indians ran away," added Aunt Vira to Simon, "the Scout, Col. Cain had sent out, was permitted to guide us right into the fort, where we knew we'd be safe, and our wounded would get care."

"I know I was mighty glad to see Emmy Lou and the soldiers come for me," Simon told them. "I was sure my leg was broken," he explained pointing to his heavily bandaged leg. "I'm sure glad it was only a bad bruise and sprain. The doctor said I'll be up and about in a week or so."

Brave Children

"Of course, you will," answered Col. Cain, smiling at Simon. "You and Emmy Lou were as brave as any of my soldiers to try to come on into the fort alone."

"Shucks," laughed Simon embarrassed at this praise. "I didn't do much. Emmy Lou was the brave one, especially since she's a girl."

Col. Cain smiled and fondly patted his little daughter's head, leaning on his shoulder, as all the others turned their eyes on the little girl, nodding in agreement.

"Sakes alive," Aunt Vira laughed softly, "the poor darlin' has dropped off to sleep.

"She was worn out," her Mother told them, rising from her chair. "Take her on to bed, John, and we'll all have another cup of coffee, while I too, thank these dear people for taking such good care of our little girl."

"Alright," chuckled her father, as he gently gathered the exhausted child into his arms. "Yes," he went on, "even the bravest soldiers have to sleep. Come on, my courageous little rebel, tomorrow is another day, and taps have sounded for you tonight."

How Free?

"Well, Smith, you are free to go at last," said the Warden.

With these words echoing in his mind and ears as he left the prison, Smith thought, "At last I can again do what I want, when I want. Haven't I, after all, paid my debt to society?"

In the weeks to follow, Smith's elatedness turned to sadness, then to despondency, then to fear, as he found out that the people whom he knew before he went into prison and who had trusted him before his crime, didn't want to make friends with him or to give him a job.

Even though Smith thought he was "free" (but in a different sense), as far as society was concerned, Smith wasn't "free" because many people distrusted and disliked him now, which greatly restricted his freedom.

At last, Smith, lacking the necessary fortitude, and will, to change people's impressions about himself and to thereby to be given more freedom in society, by society, committed another crime and was sent back to prison, greatly extinguishing what little freedom that he had had in society.

Smith had learned the hard way that the libertarian and that even the indeterminist points of view were not valid, nor acceptable, nor liveable to a great extent in the society to which he had returned.

Limit To Freedom

I believe that man, when created by God in man, is endowed with the general responsibilities that represent God's purpose for first creating him, thereby limiting man's freedom.

The other great factor that limits man's freedom is his experience. I believe that, as a man first travels the road of life he finds it a relatively broad one.

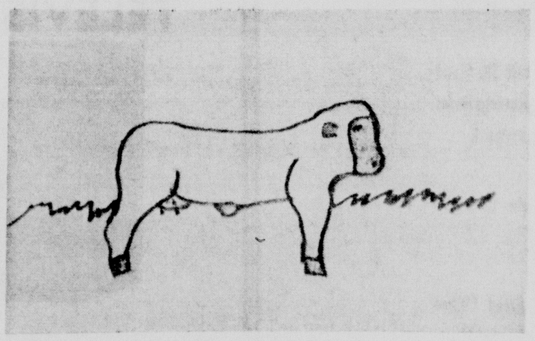

That is, when he is young, his experiences are not yet numerous enough to determine greatly, at that time, his actions. However, as he grows in age and in experience, the road grows more and more narrow because all of his experiences in life continually have been building up to be more and more the determining factor of his actions.

The question might be asked: Since a man's accumulation of experiences keeps building up, wouldn't there come a time in a man's life, especially when he is older, that he wouldn't have any freedom left at all? If so, what could he do?

In answering this, I must say that man, because he can, and does, think, he can, if he wants to, act independently of some of his experiences, just as Smith had the chance to prove himself worthy again of society, and retain, until he died, enough freedom to keep him interested in life and in living.

I believe, however, that if a man does not have the will power or does not want to retain any freedom in his life, he will find the road of determinism too narrow to walk on. How free do you think we are?

Beauty Of The Sangamon

By Mabel Hall Goltra

I sauntered slowly as if held
By beauty of the Sangamon,
And suddenly a sight excelled
All others I had looked upon
Along the low and verdant bank
Where Indian Pipes grow tall and rank.
Blue heron had come up the stream
Beholding them was like a dream
When fairies whisper through the trees.
A million were in full egret;
A scene which no one could forget.
The water sparkled in the sun
A thousand gems to look upon
That paled beneath the midday glow.
A Seer could not ask for more
With Beauty knocking at his door.
And sometimes as I stroll that way
Through fog or autumn's purple haze,
My memory recalls that day,
Delights my heart in clever ways,
And fairies who are always kind
Bring lasting beauty to the mind.

Old-Time Peddler Man

By Mary Pence Claywell

Lunch For Two

Peddler John gave his faithful horse good treatment, and he always carried a feed bag which he filled with grain and hung under her muzzle while he ate his own lunch of crackers, cheese, bologna and other things from his own wagon counter. He always stopped under a good shade tree, close to a well or pump, and after Daisy had eaten, he let down the rein and set a bucket of cool water for Daisy also.

Fanny enjoyed watching Daisy suck up the cold liquid. It was so much fun to trace it down her "swallowing" tube by the movement of her silky neck, but Fanny couldn't for the life of her, figure out how Daisy held so much. Peddler John often gave her two buckets, besides the grain, which was a big helping, too.

I guess Fanny just didn't realize how much an old horse's "breadbox" could hold. But Daisy always seemed to have ample room and stretched her neck for more every time.

"Giddy-Ap, Daisy"

As Fanny watched Peddler John mount the wagon seat, and heard his cheery "giddy-ap, Daisy!" she squeezed the new quarter in her small hand. She thought how she would spend it on the morrow when Pa took them to town in their own wagon to see the "circus" parade that was coming their way. It would be a great day for Fanny and —maybe just maybe— she might buy some peanuts to feed the elephants. Anyway, she'd give them a few.

She was also happy for another reason as she trotted along side Ma, who carried the grocery-filled egg baskets, for right on top lay a pretty piece of red calico! It was a new dress for Fanny, and Ma made such pretty ruffled dresses.

Fanny would wear it on the very first day of school, and it was only a few days away now. Fanny was a good child, and she loved school and was anxious to see it open, to say nothing of the pretty dress she would have to wear on the first day!

With a smile on her lips, she turned to watch the little cloud of dust settling down over the slope, as Peddler John and good Daisy faded out of sight. To herself, Fanny began to count the days until he would again appear atop his "walking store," with his cheery greeting. Even now, she could hear him saying as he took out the candy box, "Here, Fanny, take a couple of sticks!"

The end.

CQ RADIO HAMS—

General Ticket Study

By Joseph A. Smith

Our Receivers

The simplest one would be a Regenerative Receiver such as the "Ocean-Hopper" kit. Better still, the Heathkit AR-3 little superhet receiver kit is relatively simple but will give better amateur band performance.

Today a full sized communications receiver kit is available from one wholesale radio store for the more advanced (and better financially heeled-HI) student.

Unquestionably the superheterodyne type of receiver is the accepted communications receiver circuit; therefore you should become acquainted (at least in general) with its internal workings.

Being as brief as possible, let us think of a small communications receiver such as an S-38E, AR-3, or similar 5-tube set. An incoming R.F. signal (ae 3,500 kc) is applied from the external antenna to the MIXER tube grid where it is mixed with a second signal from a built-in oscillator.

Therefore, within the mixer you will find these four separate frequencies: namely 3,500 kc, 3,044 (the built-in osc.), 456 kc. (the "I.F." frequency), and 6,544 kc. Only the intermediate frequency (456 kc.) passes through the 1st I.F. transformer, the I.F. amplifier tube, and the 2nd I.F. transformer.

These transformers serve to narrow the band width of the receiver thus improving its selectivity. This 456 kc. signal next is fed into a combined detector and first audio amplifier tube.

Herein the R.F. component of the incoming signal is filtered out and the remaining audio element is fed then into an audio power output tube. From this last tube plate output is fed into either a speaker (output transformer and speaker combination) or earphones usually. Some receivers use a full-wave transformer type power supply; others are of the A.C.-D.C. transformer tpye.

To Improve Receiver

The selectivity of small receivers can be greatly improved by adding a "Q-Multiplier" to sharpen the I.F.s still further. Also an Army surplus B.C. 453 receiver could be tuned to the receiver's I.F. signal (taken from the detector dual plates—one only).

This 456 kc. signal is fed through the lower I.F.s of the B.C. 453 and then into another detector and audio system. This double conversion further sharpens the receiver thus reducing sideband QRM. An R.F. amplifier added ahead of these smaller receivers will boost signals considerably and reduce high frequency images appreciably. A 6A-K5 is quite useful here.

Theory

Study this week should consist of a through study of Handbook chapter No. 5—"High Frequency Receivers." Also study General exam question No. 40. Then study Amateur Extra Class questions 241, 247, 250.

Our CODE by now must be well up there in speed. Let's find out just where we stand!

Mon: Pick up the newspaper and, using text at random, send for 5 minutes; break down as before to the number of 5 letter groups per minute. What is your sending speed? Next copy random material over the air for 5 minutes; what is your speed this time?

Wed: Copy signals from the 80 meter amateur C.W. bank. Pay close attention to proper operation procedures and practice. You need this practice in heavy QRM. A QRM free QSO is a RARE thing.

Thurs: Copy WIAW at 15 W.P.M. Try following them with the code practice oscillator. Pay close attention to operating proceures here also.

Fri: Try copying some 15 W.P.M. or better "on the air" tape! Not so bad by now eh?

Sat: Take a break!

Adding CHARM to YOUR Home

by Edna C. Gustine

EAST COMES WEST

The cause of elegance is an easy one to plead when we look about at the rich storehouse of beauty opened to us by the Orient. And there's no denying that the Oriental influence in home decor is here to stay. We see it everywhere today — in background treatments, in furniture and in accessories. There's a valid reason for this. The disarming simplicity of Oriental design makes it the perfect companion for Contemporary pieces. There's a subtle excitement about Oriental design, too, that lends unmistakable richness and variety to a room plan.

The sketch above shows a happy blending of an Oriental background and Contemporary furnishings. Wallpaper used on one wall has a motif of Japanese dancers and players. A richly textured paper in harmonizing color has been used on the other walls.

Large circular teak-and-marble table has been artfully placed to fill a corner. Marble top lends elegance as well as practicality. The adjoining patio has been partially enclosed by a flowering shogi wall. (Plywood covered with wallpaper and then treated to make it weather resistant.) Note how the tropical reed furniture used in the patio relates itself to the Oriental feeling inside the room.

We know that you want furnishings that will add charm and distinction to your home. You will find them here in our treasure trove of hand picked pieces . . . every one chosen carefully to give you tasteful styling, long-lasting comfort, and true value. Come in today!

Hospital Anesthetist Tells Junior Clubwomen Of Hypnosis And Its Use

The regular meeting of the Jacksonville Junior Woman's club was held Thursday night, September 10, at Hotel Dunlap.

Following a delicious buffet dinner, the program chairman, Mrs. Robert Blazier, presented the speaker, Mrs. Carroll Lewis, chief anesthetist at Passavant hospital. Her topic was "Hypnosis, What Is It and What Is It For?"

The speaker pointed out that hypnosis is strictly a state of mind, the subconscious mind moves forward and the conscious mind becomes dormant. Mrs. Lewis noted that under hypnosis a person will not act against his or her moral code and if asked to do so the trance will break.

The dangers of hypnosis practiced by amateurs or persons not skilled in the profession were explained. A person's state of mind, suspicion, fear and superstition are factors that block successful hypnosis.

A subject successfully treated by hypnosis is generally intelligent, calm, self confident and the experience is likened to being pleasant and relaxing.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Robert Bonjean. Mrs. Robert Schneider led in the pledge to the flag. The secretary's report was made by Mrs. Bill Knapp and included reports from June, July and August.

ROD DETERMINED

THE STORY: Ross Mallory, a U.S. border patrol inspector, and Colonel Aguilar, a Mexican customs official, are being sent to board a tramp steamer which is suspected, among other things, of being infested with a dangerous disease. The ship has just left a Mexican port.

* * *

XI

Mallory clutched his companion's arms. "What's that? Over there."

Aguilar scrambled across the narrow compartment to see where Mallory was pointing. On the horizon, almost invisible against the darkening sky, was a shape, hardly more than a smudge. Together, they studied it through their binoculars.

Kaisar-i-Rum. Istanbul.

But despite the fact that its position had now been discovered, the Kaisar-i-Rum still maintained radio silence. They circled the ship at an altitude of 1,000 feet while Aguilar attempted in vain to elicit an answer. The Kaisar-i-Rum didn't seem to be attempting to escape, however; it was loafing along on a southerly course, barely making headway. Only a trickle of smoke emerging from her stack revealed that the engines were operating at all.

"Perhaps her radio is broken," Mallory suggested.

The seaplane was already coming in for a landing on the long swells. The hull touched gently, sending a spray of water leaping up to obscure the nose glass. When it cleared, Mallory could see they were barely 100 yards from the Kaisar-i-Rum and closing the gap. Aguilar began to fumble with the top escape hatch.

"How about this stuff?" Mallory pointed at the sanitary clothing and gear that Cloris had delivered to them at the Tijuana airport.

The two men stripped off their clothing, and though hampered by the cramped quarters, began to don the protective uniforms. These consisted of heavy coveralls, rubber boots, leg gaiters, rubber gloves and rubber skull caps, plus respirators which they hung temporarily around their necks. All they retained of their own apparel were their gun belts.

There was no reply, no movement on the deck to indicate that he had been heard. Mallory bent over the open hatch to speak to Aguilar. "No answer, Colonel. If we hadn't seen those two men I'd swear there was nobody aboard."

* * *

Together, they stood on the deck of the Kaisar-i-Rum and looked about them. Aguilar murmured, "I don't like it. It's too quiet."

Since the freighter was in motion, riding sluggishly up one long swell and down into the next trough, there was an illusion of life. Yet none apparently existed. No one appeared to greet them or to challenge their presence. In the rapidly failing light, the ship took on an eerie aspect, full of menace.

Aguilar gave a nervous laugh and, jerking his head for Mallory to follow, started aft. Past the cargo hatches they went and climbed the ladder to the after deck. At any moment, they expected to come upon another human being. But they did not. On the fantail was lashed the open lifeboat they had seen from the air. They approached it cautiously, wondering if it was still occupied.

It was, but the man lying there was not asleep as they had first supposed. His eyes, wide open, stared up at the sky but did not see it. He was dead. The front of his skivvy shirt was crusted dark brown with blood.

"Shot," Mallory said. "Looks like he was trying to get the lifeboat free when he got it. I wonder who . . ."

Aguilar said, "There was another man, up front." He led the way across the fantail to the starboard ladder and paused, pointing. The second crewman was plainly visible, crouching in the scuppers. But now they knew that he was not hiding from anyone. His complete rigidity revealed that he too was dead.

* * *

Mallory had a sudden, almost overpowering, impulse to run, to get away from the Kaisar-i-Rum before it was too late. No wonder the freighter was so ominously quiet; it was a floating tomb, and they were trespassers in a realm of death. Instinctively, they moved nearer to each other for mutual protection. Then, realizing their motives, they exchanged weak grins.

Mallory said, "Anybody says boo and I'm likely to go over the side."

Aguilar nodded. "I agree. Nevertheless, we can't stop now. I think we'd better put on these." He pulled the respirator up to cover his nose and mouth.

The trump coup is a play in which declarer shortens his own trump suit in order to pick up a guarded honor that he cannot finesse for.

John Beshara's heart game was normal enough and without the bad trump split he would have been shooting for an overtrick.

East won the ace of diamonds and returned the ten. John ruffed in dummy, played the king of hearts and got the bad news. Undaunted he led the ten of hearts and overtook with his jack.

This time East played a spade. John won in dummy, trumped another club in his own hand and was now down to two trumps as was West.

Now he led his last spade and when East had to follow the trump coup had been completed. John led a fourth spade from dummy and East had to ruff whereupon John overruffed and made his contract.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everybody is telling New York how to handle its serious teen-age hoodlum problem.

Movie stylist Sy Devore, who was reared on New York's streets, says there is no truer adage than that clothes make the man.

"The sweat-shirt school of acting with its scratchers and nose pickers did more to demoralize the youth of this country than any slum environment," Devore says.

Devore says he started three years ago to dress up Hollywood's younger set and it's paying off.

"Tommy Sands, Ricky Nelson, the Crosby boys, Fabian, Frankie Avalon and Pat Boone all are good dressers — and neat too," says Devore.

"He tries to look like a bum but, believe me, his sweaters are the finest cashmere. They cost as much as some of the finest suits."

"They were pretty rambunctious kids," says Devore, "but now that they are wearing good clothes and wearing them well, they're settling down to almost conservative behavior."

Eisenhower Beats JHS, 20-6; Routt Blanks Franklin, 27-0

Jacks Suffer First Loss In 32 Starts At Hands Of Eisenhower

DECATUR—A balanced backfield and an aggressive forward wall made history for Eisenhower here Friday night as they handed Jacksonville High its first loss in 32 outings, 20-6.

Coach John Alexander's Panthers were paced by speed merchant Tom Jelks, who scored two TD's in the second quarter, and by fullback George Eubanks, who tallied in the third period.

After the Crimsons recovered a punt fumble in the initial chapter and moved to the Panther 6 yard stripe, they were never in the game until the final three minutes of play when a passing attack led them to paydirt.

The last loss a JHS eleven suffered was a 26-21 defeat to Notre Dame in 1955. Jacksonville embarked on the 1959 season carrying 29 wins in 31 starts, two of which were ties—6-6 to Lanphier in '55 and a 13-13 deadlock with Jerseyville in '58.

1st Period Break

The Crimsons received to open the contest but their initial drive bogged down and Tom Oxley punted to the Panther 41 where Eisenhower co-captain Dick Portee fumbled and end Jack Ricks recovered for Jacksonville. A first down pickup moved the Crimsons closer but they needed a yard gain on fourth down on the Eisenhower 14 in order to retain possession. Fullback Don Schillinger got the necessary yardage plus seven more to move to the six-yard line. The drive ended there three plays later when a shovel pass was fumbled and the Panthers took over.

Eisenhower penetrated to the Crimson 34 yard line before Schillinger intercepted a pass and scoring in the first quarter ceased to be.

All Eisenhower

The Panthers picked up three consecutive first downs after taking over on downs on their own 39 with the 61 yard march being capped by Jelks on an 11-yard run. Lucas' PAT was wide.

The winners hit paydirt two first downs later and a 13-yard jaunt by Jelks with five minutes remaining before halftime. Lucas converted and the Panthers led, 13-0.

Jacksonville's defensive unit looked good in the opening minutes of the third quarter as they forced Eisenhower to punt for the first time in the tilt, JHS' offensive unit couldn't move and they returned their second punt of the game. On the first play from scrimmage, Jelks journeyed 55 yards to the end zone but the play was called back on a holding penalty. The two clubs traded punts once again and Eisenhower climaxed a 33 yard drive with Eubacks going over from the eight. Lucas converted and Jacksonville trailed, 20-0.

The Crimsons started their only scoring drive late in the final period from their own five with a passing attack centered around Dick Parker, Gary Spangenberg and Jack McCarty. The 95-yard payoff tally came on Dick Parker's 18-yard toss to Gary Spangenberg in the end zone. Schillinger's PAT attempt was blocked but Jacksonville had broken the scoring ice with 2:56 left in the game.

JHS threatened to score again in the final minute of play on a recovered fumble. They drove to the Eisenhower 20 but two costly penalties put a damper on any further scoring.

Eisenhower had 11 first downs to Jacksonville's 9. The Crimsons hit on seven of 11 passes for 117 yards to Eisenhower's two of five completions for 41 yards. The Panthers held the upper hand in the rushing department, 195 yards to 96. Both teams were penalized 25 yards in accepted penalties.

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Gene Morse, former Bradley University basketball star from Havana, was severely injured about 4 p.m. Wednesday in a three-car collision on West Main street at North Institute Place in Peoria. He was reported in good condition Thursday at Methodist hospital. Morse is 21 years of age and is an insurance salesman residing at 3815 War Memorial Drive in Peoria. He suffered head and right arm injuries.

George Taylor is starting his 15th season as head football coach at Chillicothe high school. Seventy boys reported for the initial drills and eight lettermen were on hand. Handling the quarterback job will be Jim Taylor, the coach's son at 5-9 and 160 pounds, he is rated in many departments as good or better as a junior than his brother Ron who is now a varsity candidate in his sophomore year at the University of Missouri. Coach Taylor and his assistant coaches have high hopes for freshman Rod Roehnelt, younger brother of Bill, former Grey Ghost player at Chillicothe high who went on to college fame at Bradley and is now a linebacker for the Pro Chicago Bears.

Covance Cabell, the hard charging freshman fullback for Bradley from Waukegan, who picked up 90 yards in 17 carries against Iowa Teachers last week suffered a wrist injury during Wednesday's practice. Dave O'Hara from Springfield has been moved from halfback to quarterback.

Lewistown high school will stage its Homecoming Friday night in a game with the Cuba high Cardinals coached by Tom Zaborac, former star athlete at Canton high school. The afternoon parade will start at 3 p.m. and leading will be the high school band followed by the Queen and her attendants. Several floats have been promised by the businessmen in addition to those entered by the school. The football game will get underway at 7 p.m. and the Queen and her attendants will be introduced before the game at the athletic field. The Queen will flip a coin to determine which team will kick off or receive. Lewistown's high school band will play at the halftime intermission and a Homecoming dance will be held after the game sponsored by the Legend staff.

Athletic Director Don Luketich of Alton high school wants to fill two open dates during the 1960 football season. Alton is interested in either home or road games Sept. 16 and Oct. 14. Litchfield and Pana are favored to battle for the Mid State conference title as both teams are loaded with lettermen. Hillsboro is another member of that fine conference but the Hilltoppers are using many underclassmen this season and Coach Buzz Ott is looking forward to the 1960 and 1961 seasons.

Bill Harshbarger had to miss the football season last year due to an injury and he is being groomed for the quarterback position at Arcola high this year. Co-captains Harry Bright and Joe Monahan will lead the Arcola eleven during the 1959 campaign. Christian Brothers high of Quincy, formerly Notre Dame high, is seeking a football opponent for Sept. 25 or 26 and Coach Bob Cudney will be glad to hear from any high school that is interested in filling these dates.

Coach Jimmie Evers at Centralia high has 17 consecutive wins in football and his team this season is ripe for an upset. The varsity has not been beaten since losing to Coach Virgil Fletcher's Collinsville Kahocks in the opening 1957 game. Frosh and Soph squads have gone unbeaten in three seasons which means that no Centralia high football player has ever played in a losing high school game. Evers is a former coach at Greenfield high school.

Leland Wahlgreen recovered a fumble on the one yard line in the fourth period and scored but the point after touchdown failed. Gary Curtis wound up Pittsfield scoring when he took a 20 yard pass from McGinnis and rambled 40 yards to paydirt.

PALMYRA 32 WHITE HALL 0

PALMYRA—Coach Ben Clark's fine Northwestern team swept White Hall here tonight as brothers Bob and Bill McKinney kept all the scoring in the family as they ran off with the victory, 32-0.

Bob McKinney led off the first period with a 27-yard run to paydirt. This was the big quarter for Northwestern as Bob went the TD route twice, and brother Bill also scored twice in quite a running spree.

The second period was again dominated by Northwestern and the McKinney boys, as Bob again tore through for two TD's and Bill successfully completed two PAT's. Although scoreless in the last two periods of the game the boys from Palmyra were never really threatened. Northwestern had 15 first downs while White Hall had only 6. While Northwestern had a fine head of steam and rolled over the opposition, White Hall could not seem to get started.

Freshmen At Meredosia Wear Initiation Garb

MEREDOSIA — The traditional prerogative of the sophomores of Meredosia - Chambersburg high school is to dictate the costumes to be worn by freshmen for one day early in the school year. Suggestions are subject to Mr. Young's approval or modification.

Last Wednesday the girls were commanded to wear sixteen pigtails, men's sunglasses, long underwear with five patches and worn backwards, football helmets with pigtails sticking out of airholes, one engineer boot on right foot and one hip boot on the left foot—no size smaller than eight, no lipstick, carry a can of spinach and wear work gloves on the wrong hands.

A joint installation of Legion and Auxiliary officers will be held on September 21, with a potluck supper at 6:30. All members are asked to bring one covered dish, the meat and drink will be furnished.

It was voted that the Auxiliary will serve at the dances to be held at the Legion hall on Friday nights. Beginning in October the meetings will start at 7:30 p.m. for the winter months.

KNUCKLER CAME EASY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eddie Gene Fisher, 23-year-old Giant rookie pitcher, says the knuckle ball came easy to him, even though his University of Oklahoma coach wouldn't permit him to use the pitch.

Fisher appeared in 22 games for Corpus Christi and in 16 for Phoenix before making his major league debut. He won his first start, too, beating the Pirates, 4-1, on June 22.

GAL TAKES LONG CRUISE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ann Davison, who has skippered her 27-foot sloop, Felicity Ann, from England to Nassau, has left here on a 5,000-mile cruise in a 17-foot outboard with two 35 horsepower outboard motors. Her route will take her through the intracoastal waterway, up the Hudson river, through the Erie Canal into the Great Lakes, down the Illinois river into the Mississippi, then to New Orleans, to Key West and back to Miami.

Rocket Passing Attack And Line Play Brings Opening Grid Victory

FRANKLIN — Field general Mickey Walker ran and passed Bob Winstead's Rockets to a 27-0 victory over a scrappy Franklin eleven Friday in the season opener for both clubs.

Walker hit on eight of 12 tosses, which accounted for 135 yards. The line play was real good with George Trutter spearheading the attack on defense followed by Fred Curtis and Bill Tobin, who had six tackles apiece.

The penalty department proved to be a nightmare for the Rockets, who had 130 yards in accepted walk-offs. Several injuries slowed Routt up. Halfback Denny Lewis was injured in the first two minutes of the game and had to be carried off the field. The full extent of the shoulder injury isn't known at this time. Fullback Tom Shanle also suffered an injury in the third period.

Routt scored in the first quarter on a one yard plunge by Tom Shanle. Walker had set the TD up with a 30 yard pass return on an interception.

Fred Curtis scored on a one yarder in the second quarter to cap a 40 yard drive and Walker passed to Tobin for the PAT and a 13-0 lead. Shanle made the score at halftime read, 20-0, when he caught a fumbled pass and went 30 yards to paydirt. Curtis plunged for the extra point.

Routt's final tally came on a 30 yard pass from Curtis to Tobin, who ran an additional 10 yards for the TD. The PAT was ran for by Curtis.

PATIENCE REQUIRED

CHICAGO (AP)—George J. Maier may be the only American fish fancier with the patience to breed Peruvian longfins.

After Maier's longfins laid eggs in their tank, he collected the eggs and placed them in trays of damp peat moss. The eggs lay there 12 weeks, because they must lie dormant as they do in Peru.

After the dormant period, Maier moistened the eggs with stagnant water. It had to be stagnant water, because bacteria in swamp-like water is needed to digest the egg casings, releasing the baby fish.

Willie Shoemaker led Round Table to victory in the 1957 United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City and in 1958 he piloted Clem to victory in the same stake against Round Table who finished second.

TV NEWS
by DON SHUMAKER

You'll have to tune your TV set in to "The Alaskans" if for no other reason than to get an eyeful of Dorothy Provine, co-star who plays the role of Rocky Shaw. (This remark is directed toward our men readers). As Warner Bros. producer Harry Tatleman says: "She doesn't look much different from other beautiful blondes in Hollywood, but the moment she steps in front of that camera, ZING! Up go the missiles." Dorothy's inquiring mind (I.Q. 164) does not restrict itself to subjects connected with show business. For example, during her senior year at the University of Washington, she needed a general science course to round out her education. She signed up for a physical science course but, through a mix-up in the registrar's office, found herself in an atomic physics class with eight graduate students. The amused professor gave her a formula to work out, telling her that if she were smart enough to work it out, she would manage to get through the course.

Copying the problem from THREE blackboard panels, she took it home and went to work. Never having studied calculus, she substituted logic and two weeks later had finished the problem. She remained in the atomic physics course, which she completed with a "B," the lowest grade she had ever received. She now reluctantly acknowledges that her high I.Q. "puts men on the defensive." We'll bet she doesn't wear her Phi Beta Kappa key when out on a date. And speaking of dates, select a date now to see an RCA Victor TV demonstration if you plan to purchase a new TV set. A new RCA TV will provide maximum viewing enjoyment of the many fine shows to be telecast this season and thereafter. The performance will please you . . . it's just as easy to own the best. SHUMAKER TV & APPLIANCES, 222 East State St. Phone CH. 5-6595.

Deadly nitrogen dioxide gas, usually present in newly filled silos, may be even more dangerous than usual this year because of the exceptionally dry growing season. This gas is most likely to develop in silos recently filled with corn fertilized with nitrogen during a dry season.

"BLACK LAND"

Dutch philosopher Spinoza (1632-1677) said, "Minds are not conquered by arms, but by love and generosity."
